GERMANS CAPTURE WARSAW

BRITISH SHIPMENTS MAY BE CITED IN AMERICA'S REPLY

Statistics Declared to Show Great Increase in Cotton and Copper Exports to the Scandinavian Countries and Holland Since the War Began.

GENERAL EXPORTS REVEAL A DECREASE

Britain Announces Her Readiness to Take Up Particular Cases in Which Hardships May Be Inflicted on Neutrals.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Elaborate statistics have been assembled by the State Department to refute the British assumption that increased exportations from the United States to Holland and Scandinavian countries indicate that some of these goods are finding their way into Germany and Austria. The figures will be included in a preliminary draft, being prepared for President Wilson of the reply to the three British notes made public yesterday.

A study of trade conditions between the United States and neutral European countries has been made by the State Department and investigations of Scandinavian and Dutch trade by the Department of Commerce. A report from Consul-General Skinner at London also has been received on the foreign trade of Great Britain for the six months ended June 30. It shows that British exports to the Scandinavian countries and Holland have increased since the war began along the same line as American exports to these countries.

The State Department will contend that there can be no more assumption that American goods, going to these neutral countries, are bound for Germany, than that British goods, exported there, will reach Great Britain's enemies.

British Cotton Exports.
The London report shows that while Great Britain's general exports decreased materially in the first six months of 1915, as compared with the same period of 1914, imports increased. Re-exports during June, the first month during which the British Order in Council was fully effective, showed an increase of $2,044,832.

In cotton, one of the much-disputed articles in the trade, Great Britain's imports increased by 1,514,592 cents of 112 pounds each. Of the re-exports of cotton Consul-General Skinner says:
"Holland and Sweden each took about five times as much cotton in June, 1915, as in June, 1914, and during the past half year Sweden received 142,545 cents and Holland 250,828 cents of cotton as against 15,642 cents and 17,768 cents, respectively, in the same period of 1914."

Copper Export Figures.
Large increase in all lines of cotton goods and cotton yarns from Great Britain to Sweden, Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands for the first six months of 1915 are shown. Despite a general decrease in exports of manufactured copper, Great Britain sent Norway 317 tons in 1915, as against 48 tons in 1914. Increased American copper exports to Scandinavia, he said, have been cited by Great Britain to sustain her contention.

These British trade figures with many others collected by the State Department have been arranged for use in replying to Great Britain. If the President determines to argue the question, despite the flat refusal of this country to recognize Great Britain's right to interfere with non-contraband commerce through neutral ports, even if it is for final consumption by a belligerent.

Encouraged by the announcement from London that a part of the cargo of the steamer Neches had been released, officials determined today to press informal negotiations to obtain an agreement that would release all the vast quantity of American-bound commodities now lying on Rotterdam docks.

"Particular Cases."
The British note in the Neches case set forth that if it is alleged that "in particular cases and special circumstances hardships may be inflicted on citizens of neutral countries, his majesty's Government are ready in such cases to examine the facts in a spirit of consideration for neutrals."

In line with this assurance, the foreign trade advisers of the State Department are forwarding to London affidavits covering hundreds of individual cases in which they allege that hardships are being inflicted. The total involved will be millions of dollars, and undoubtedly will precipitate extended diplomatic correspondence.

PARENTS HELPLESS, SEE 3 DAUGHTERS BURNED TO DEATH

Eight Cottages at Lake Delaware, Wis., Destroyed by Flames, Three Dynamited.

CHILDREN IN A DAZE

Refused to Jump From Window
When Told to Do So—Ladder Is Procured Too Late.

DELAWARE, Wis., Aug. 5.—Helpless to save them, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Bryant watched their three children, Helen, Lucy and Mary, burn to death last night in their cottage at Lake Delaware, a resort near here. Bryant is president of the Racine Rubber Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryant were entertaining on the first floor of their cottage when the fire was discovered. The bedrooms in which the children slept were cut off by flames and smoke.
The children apparently were dazed and refused to jump from the window when they were told to do so. By the time a ladder was procured the children were dead.

That there were not more casualties was due to the fact that within a few minutes after the fire was discovered in the Bryant cottage the residents of the resort had formed a bucket brigade and water was carried up the beach from the lake and thrown on the flames.

Despite this, eight cottages in all were destroyed, the only way the residents could fight the fire being by means of a fire brigade. The fire was finally brought under control by the dynamiting of three cottages. The cottages destroyed were only 200 feet from the Highland Hotel, the largest on the lake.

The fire is believed to have started from an overheated chimney. Because of the cold weather, grate fires have been lighted in the cottages for several nights.

MISSOURI PACIFIC FOLDER CALLS ST. LOUIS FIFTH CITY

Misstatement on Population Rank Discovered in Literature Distributed at Panama Fair.

While Boston and Cleveland, filled with envy and emulation, are threatening to push St. Louis out of fourth place in population ranks, the Missouri Pacific Railroad, in a widely circulated folder, has already put St. Louis in fifth place.

The folder, entitled, "The Globe," was published primarily for distribution among visitors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. It is also distributed all over the railway system. It contains a panoramic picture of St. Louis and a picture of Eads Bridge. In the accompanying reading matter is a pa-graph which says: "St. Louis ranks fifth in Uncle Sam's honor roll of large cities."

Post-Dispatch reporter, who discovered the error in the folder, showed the misstatement to James W. Booth, advertising agent for the Missouri Pacific system, in his office in the Railway Exchange Building. Booth expressed amazement that such an error should creep into the folder.

The responsibility, he said, rested with the office of F. A. Wadleigh, passenger traffic manager of the Denver & Rio Grande division of the road, whose office is in Denver. The folder had been prepared for publication there, he said. Booth yesterday wrote a letter to Wadleigh calling attention to the mistake.

AMERICA'S SALT CONSUMPTION, 100 POUNDS PER CAPITA A YEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Salt consumption in the United States amounted to 9,988,820,580 pounds during 1914, an increase of 41,775,800 pounds over that consumed in 1913. That amount, announced today by the Geological Survey, would mean a per capita consumption of at least 100 pounds for the year. Sugar's per capita consumption during 1914 was 83.14 pounds.

Salt production in the United States was 5,785,911,400 pounds and imports were 361,629,329 pounds during 1914. That produced in this country was valued at $10, 713,355. Production was greater than in 1913, keeping pace with the increase of population.

There has been a steady downward trend in the cost of salt owing to the abundant sources of supply and also the greatest advance made in the last few decades in methods of manufacture.

A. B. LAMBERT SAID TO HAVE QUIT THE GLEN ECHO BOARD

Resigned When His Offer to Take Over Property Was Rejected, It Is Declared.

The reported resignation of Albert Bond Lambert from the board of nine trustees who bought the Glen Echo Golf Club property and led a plan to reorganize the club, in which 132 former members were left out, has added a new twist to the already tangled story of the now famous "golfsus."

Lambert, when asked about the matter by a Post-Dispatch reporter this morning, said:

"I will not deny the report, but I am not in a position to discuss the club's affairs at this time."

He was then asked whether, in the event of his resignation, it would mean he would retain his financial holdings in the venture or would get out altogether. He again refused to discuss it, repeating the words, "at this time."

Another man closely identified with the club's affairs refused to be quoted for publication, but declared he knew positively that Lambert had resigned.

He said that he had heard several versions of the matter, the most striking of which was that Lambert had offered to other trustees to take over the entire investment to be used for the benefit of the whole organization.

said to Have Made Ultimatum.

This story has it that Lambert yesterday delivered a sort of ultimatum last Saturday that if his offer were not accepted by Monday he would withdraw altogether.
A curious feature of this version is that one of the trustees to whom he made the proposal was James C. Jones, who has gone on record as opposed to all plans that would involve freeing out any of the members of the old organization.

Lambert has been regarded all along as the moving spirit in the Board of Trustees. He is supposed to have been largely instrumental in forming the plan whereby he and the other trustees bid in the club's property for $122,000 at auction.

The original plan was to control the new club's affairs by a voting trust of the nine trustees. The big row was started when it was learned that 132 of the old Glen Echo members had been scratched off the list of those to be invited to join the new club.

"Outs" Decided to Sue.

Some of the "outs" decided to contest the matter in the courts and instructed their attorney, Frank H. Sullivan, to file a suit for that purpose. Sullivan said today that the petition had not been prepared, but that he was working on the matter.

E. T. G. Smith, one of the trustees, said this morning that most of the nine were out of the city. He said he knew nothing of Lambert's resignation, but that if Lambert did resign, the other trustees would continue to handle the affairs of the club as they have planned.

IMPERIAL BANKING HOUSE

ELMER KIEL FINED $5 AND COSTS BY JUDGE SANDERS

Judge Hogan, Brother-in-Law, Finds That He Is Disqualified and Transfers Case.

Elmer Kiel, 20-year-old son of Mayor Kiel, arrested yesterday on a charge of violation of the traffic ordinance at Sixth and Olive streets, hurried to the court of his brother-in-law, Judge Hogan of the Municipal Police tribunal, this morning, for trial.

Young Kiel and Republican City Committee "Bank" Wesske were yesterday in the judge's chambers when Judge Hogan arrived.

Judge Hogan said at first he would try the case on its merits regardless of the relationship between himself and the defendant, but after consulting the ordinance he decided that the law required him to disqualify himself, as it specifically forbids that a police court judge shall sit in a case in which he and the defendant are relatives. He then certified the case to Judge Sanders' court.

Judge Sanders fined young Kiel $5, but stayed the fine on payment of $3 costs.

Kiel was arrested by Policeman Tucker at Sixth and Olive streets yesterday afternoon. Tucker testified that Kiel ignored a signal and attempted to turn his automobile south when east and west traffic had the right of way.

Before the trial the policeman said Kiel boasted of being the Mayor's son and threatened to "get his job." He said nothing about this when testifying.
Kiel testified that he did not know he was violating the traffic law when he attempted to make the turn. He denied published statements that he had threatened the policeman. After the trial he said he would not prefer charges against Tucker.

Two weeks ago Traffic Policeman
Ward of Sixth street and Washington avenue reported that Kiel had ignored traffic signals at that corner. He said that Kiel reminded him he was the Mayor's son. Ward made him conform to the rule, but did not arrest him.

BETHLEHEM STEEL COMMON STOCK PASSES 300 MARK

Price Has Advanced 269 Points Since Beginning of War—Company Never Has Paid a Dividend.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Common stock of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, whose rise has seen few parallels in the history of the New York Stock Exchange, passed the 300 mark today. It sold during the morning at 301, a gain since the beginning of the war of 269 points. The company was incorporated in 1904 and the stock has never paid a dividend.

The rise today was 11 points from the previous high record, established yesterday, of 290. The stock has advanced 50 points this week. When the Stock Exchange closed on July 30, 1914, just before the outbreak of the war, it was quoted at 23. The advance of this stock and the shares of other corporations in the war order group, has been accompanied by unrestrained speculation with little authentic information on which to base such a rise.

It has been known in a general way that Bethlehem Steel has received huge war orders on which the profits presumably are large, but no official figure have been given out.

BAVARIANS BREAK THROUGH DEFENSES OF POLISH CAPITAL

Prince Leopold's Men Take Russia's Third City After Day and Night of Fighting.

RUSSIAN LINE OF RETREAT IS SERIOUSLY THREATENED

German Cavalry Is Operating in Such Numbers in North That Petrograd Railway May Be Cut at Any Time—Invaders Under Von Buelow Only Day's March From Riga.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Aug. 5. (by Wireless to Tucker-ton, N. J.)—Warsaw was taken this morning by German troops, according to official announcement made at German army headquarters.

Yesterday and last night Bavarian troops, under the command of Prince Leopold, broke through the forts of the outer and inner lines of the city's defenses, where the rear guard of the Russians made a tenacious resistance.

Continuing the report from headquarters says:
"The German armies under Gen. von Scholtz and Gen. von Gallwitz advanced in the direction of the road between Lomza, Ostrov and Wyszow and fought a number of violent engagements. The brave and desperate resistance of the Russians on both sides of the road between Ostrov and Rozan was without success.

Lomza, Ostrov and Wyszow are to the northeast of Warsaw. Wyszow City is 27 miles from the Polish capital. Ostrov is 30 miles northeast of Wyszow and Lomza is 27 miles north of Ostrov. Rozan is 24 miles north of Wyszow.

"Twenty-two Russian officers and 4,840 soldiers were taken prisoner. The Germans also captured 17 machine guns.

"German cavalry yesterday and the day before defeated in Courland detachments of Russian cavalry at points near Genez, Birsht and Onikshty.
A total of 2,225 Russian prisoners was taken.

"The situation near and to the north of Ivangorod remains unchanged.
"The campaign is being continued between the upper Vistula River and the River Bug. German cavalrymen have entered Wladimir-Wolynsk, on the Bug River."

Turning Movement North of Warsaw Grave Menace to the Russian Troops

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 5.—The first news of the fall of Warsaw was received in London this afternoon in a message transmitted by wireless telegraphy from Berlin. It said that official announcement had been made of the capture of Warsaw by the Germans.

The vast turning movement of the Germans to the northward of Warsaw is exciting the concern of the entente allies. It is feared by observers that the evacuation of Warsaw may be too late to save the armies of Grand Duke Nicholas from the grave disaster which would be inevitable if Field Marshal von Hindenburg should get astride the Warsaw-Petrograd railway.

In the north the Russians are defending the line of the River Ekau, east of Mitau. This means that the Germans are at a point 40 miles south of Riga and about one march from that town.

The critical situation at Riga is increased by the evacuation of the city by the non-military elements of the population, the banks being the last to leave. German cavalry forces are scouring the country in such numbers that the Warsaw-Petrograd line always is in danger of being cut by the Russians resisting stubbornly, as the breaking of the defense here would mean the early loss of Dvinsk, the most important junction of the Petrograd-Warsaw railroad.

Desperate battles still are prevailing along the Narva River with the Germans meeting the stone wall of the Russian defense, except at a point near Ostrolenka, where they forded the river, captured several thousand prisoners and forced the Russians back to the outer defenses on the northern front of the fortress of Lomza.

Berlin reports yesterday that the Germans had occupied the western portion of Ivangorod fortress.

Russians Virtually Wipe Out Black Sea Commerce of Turkey.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The Russian Black Sea flotilla of destroyers practically has wiped out Turkish commerce on that sea and thereby has hampered the supplying of Constantinople, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post.

It is asserted that the destroyers have succeeded in burning or sinking almost all Turkish vessels since the war began, most of them small sailing craft, but some steamers and about a dozen sailing ships of more than 100 tons burden.

The Russian destroyers, he says, ap-

PAN-AMERICAN CONFERENCE ON MEXICO BEGINS

Representatives of Six South and Central American Republics Meet With Secretary Lansing.

CARRANZA HEARD FROM

Opposes Any Member of Old Madero Cabinet as Choice for Provisional President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The six Pan-American diplomats invited by President Wilson to join the United States in formulating a plan for restoring peace to Mexico, arrived here today for their conference with Secretary Lansing.

The first result is expected to be the groundwork of an understanding for an all-American project to re-establish constitutional government across the Rio Grande, preserve the sovereignty of Mexico and convince the world that the United States is acting as Mexico's nearest and most powerful neighbor in saving the distracted country from itself.

Ambassadors Naon, Da Gama and Suarez of Argentina, Brazil and Chile, respectively, who were mediators at the Niagara conference last year, and Ministers Calderon, Mendez and De Pena of Bolivia, Guatemala and Uruguay, respectively, selected because they are the ranking members of the Pan-American Legation Corps, went to the State Department to meet Secretary Lansing at 2:30 o'clock.

Paul Fuller, a confidential adviser to President Wilson on Mexican affairs, also took part in the conference.

To Help Devise Plan. The diplomats were only partly advised of President Wilson's plan. The purpose of the conference was to invite their help in working one out. Their governments already have signified their willingness to co-operate in the work, and after today's conference, it is expected the other Pan-American countries, including Cuba, not represented in today's conference, will be asked to join in the work.

So far as is known the President's plan proposes first, a cessation of warfare and establishment of provisional government by the factional leaders themselves; should that fail, the American nations would assume the task.

The Villa and Carranza leaders here began taking steps to get their claims before the conference, through courtesy of some of the Latin-American participants.

The Carranza representatives will point out that they now control the greater portion of Mexico, including most of the principal cities and all the principal ports and that they have restored civil government and industry in the wake of their armies. They will press their claims of military advantages over the Villa forces.

Villa representatives plan to submit their willingness to participate in peace conferences between the factions and to the elimination of military leaders, but will oppose the recognition of Carranza.

Pan-American Commission.

Aside from the plan of settlement among the Mexican leaders themselves, the proposal to establish a Pan-American Commission to take up the matter of disarmament, restore civil government and conduct elections has been brought forward again. Another plan for settling Mexico with Pan-American forces also has been considered.

The President's plan is also said to include immediate steps to open up the railroad between Vera Cruz and Mexico City for the transportation of food supplies to the starving people of the capital. Failure of the Mexican leaders to keep open the road, it was said, might result in joint military steps by the United States and the Latin-American nations to that end.

Gen. Carranza's Attitude.

Herbert Barron, head of the delegation of Carranza supporters, which arrived here today, called on each of the six Latin-American diplomats and informed them that Gen. Carranza in no circumstances would submit to the selection of a member of the Madero Cabinet as provisional President for Mexico. The Villa faction contends that Vasquez Tagle, the only member of the Madero Cabinet who did not refuse to resign in the line of constitutional succession.

Barron delivered to each of the diplomats copies of Gen. Carranza's letter to President Wilson, published several months ago, setting out Carranza's legal claim as successor to the presidency.

Lois Cabrera, Carranza's Minister of Finance, and Roberto V. Pequeña, another Carranza adherent, were in the party. Eduardo Iturbide, one of those mentioned for the provisional presidency, and Oscar J. Breniff, of another faction, also arrived.

It was indicated as the hour for the conference approached that the Latin-Americans intend to enter it with open minds to hear President Wilson's plan, which they in turn will submit to their governments for consideration before further action is taken.

Reports that Brigadier-General Scott, chief of staff of the army, would be sent to compose the differences between the Mexican leaders, were met with the announcement that it was only one of several plans submitted to the State Department which had remained unacted upon.

The dispatch of a battery of field artillery from Fort Bliss, Ok., to El Paso has aroused considerable comment here. Officials attached little importance to the incident, saying it was desired to have the border well guarded in view of the recent uprisings.

Carranza Troops Leave Nogales. Retirement of Carranza troops attacking Nogales was officially reported today to the War Department. Their withdrawal relieves a critical situation in which American troops

State Department dispatches report the release of Paul Hudson, publisher of the Mexican Herald, and his staff, held prisoners in the Herold building during the last Zapata occupancy of the Mexican capital.

The report says Hudson was released with the arrival of Gen. Gutierrez of the Carranza forces.

The cruiser Chattanooga has been ordered to Topolobampo to investigate conditions there and at the mouth of the Fuerte River. There has been no report of danger there, but the absence of American war craft for some time has caused civilians to fear Indian uprisings. Three hundred marines are on board the Hector at La Paz in Lower California for emergencies.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 5.—Gen. Francisco Villa arrived at Juarez today. While the precise object of his visit was a matter of conjecture, it is said he is to confer with George Carothers, special State Department agent, and with Gen. Felipe Angeles.

Efforts to verify a report late last night that the garrison at Torreon demanded the presence of Gen. Villa under threat of revolt failed.

Gen. Carranza's Attitude.

Herbert Barron, head of the delegation of Carranza supporters, which arrived here today, called on each of the six Latin-American diplomats and informed them that Gen. Carranza in no circumstances would submit to the selection of a member of the Madero Cabinet as provisional President for Mexico. PRESIDENT SAYS HE IS WATCHING EASTLAND CASE

He Tells Mayor Thompson He Will See That Investigation Is Satisfactory to Public.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Mayor Thompson today received a letter from President Wilson stating that the President will make it his duty to see that the investigation of the steamer Eastland disaster is entirely satisfactory to the public.

The letter is in answer to a communication which Mayor Thompson sent to the President several days ago which contained a copy of the resolutions passed by a committee of the Chicago City Council demanding that the Federal Government make a thorough investigation of the Eastland accident independent of the inquiry being conducted by Secretary of Commerce Redfield.

President Wilson's letter read as follows:

"CORNISH, N. H., Aug. 3. "My Dear Mayor: I received today in receipt of your letter of July 29, enclosing a copy of a resolution adopted by the Committee on Harbors, Wharves and Bridges of the City Council of Chicago, with regard to the investigation of the distressing Eastland disaster."

"I shall make it my duty to see to it that the investigation does not result in a way which will not be entirely satisfactory to the public. With much respect, cordially and sincerely yours, "WOODROW WILSON."

The letter was transmitted to the Council Committee by the Mayor. The committee plans to begin an official inspection of every excursion steamer running out of Chicago tomorrow. The State grand jury devoted the day to consideration of testimony heard in its investigation of the Eastland disaster, and it is said that indictments may be returned in a few days against those persons held responsible.

The special Federal grand jury which has been investigating the case, held a brief session today and adjourned until next Tuesday, when it is said indictments may be returned.

Site to Test Shrapnel Sought.

Place Near St. Louis Sought by Maker of Munitions.

Charles A. Houts, former United States District Attorney, and Frank M. Rumbold, former Adjutant-General of Missouri, are seeking a shrapnel testing ground somewhere within a convenient distance of St. Louis. Both said today they could not discuss the subject.

It is understood the testing ground will be required by a manufacturer who has obtained a contract for shrapnel from some of the European belligerents. Rumbold is an expert artilleryman, having recently participated in the target practice of the United States Government in Kansas. A tract of land about six miles square, in which there are neither roads nor houses, will be required for the testing grounds.

The list of organized endeavors in behalf of the needy babies of St. Louis lengthens, and the ambition among those promoting them to achieve notable financial success grows. The milk fund, with occasional plays or other amusement enterprises, are the order, and in many of them there is a record of substantial earnings. Realization that this is the trying period of the year for the babies, and that the ensuing several weeks must be marked by the most earnest effort if the cause is to be adequately sustained, is the powerfully impelling influence. The Pure Milk and Free Ice League is behind its record of accomplishments for several previous years, and this in itself is furnishing incentive to the girls and boys. To this is added stimulus from knowledge that perils among the infant population is more widespread than in former years, owing to enforced idleness among the working classes.

The "Children of Oakley Place," as six little misses of that residential thoroughfare are known in their organization, have in mind that last year they brought to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund more than $200. The preceding year they also were the means of adding a considerable sum. Their effort for this season will be made this evening, on the lawn of Oakley place. It is of the bazar order, splendidly organized for its attractiveness and effective earning capacity, and they are sanguine of setting a high mark for the future. Sales of ice cream, cake and various novelties are to be the feature, and it will at the same time be enjoyable socially. The girls conducting the affair are Misses Florence Rubins, Helen McDearis, Nellie Walker, Catheryn Aylisse, Ruth Woerner and Grace McCloskey.

Six Children to Give Bazar. Tomorrow evening, at the home of Dr. William F. Heyde, 234 Rutter street, six children, including two of Dr. and Mrs. Heyde, will hold a bazar, beginning at 8 o'clock. The children are among the most popular in that section of the city, and their friends and young people are lending cordial assistance to the cause of the needy babies.

Another carnival along broad lines is being organized for Tuesday evening on the lawn of 423-30 Cook avenue, a section of the city in which little children are crowded together. The vegetables are being sold for the benefit of the babies. The children are among the most popular in that section of the city, and their friends and young people are lending cordial assistance to the cause of the needy babies.

Young Gardeners Sell Wares. A lemonade stand from which also was sold vegetables, candy and other articles at Forest and Mitchell avenues by four boys, was productive of $2.40 for the benefit of the babies. In the erection of the stand one of the boys, Jack Gannett, 6841 Mitchell avenue, suffered a severely bruised finger and is under a doctor's care. The vegetables sold were grown by the boys in their gardens. Those who participated are Jack and Bruno Gannett, 6841 Mitchell avenue, and Walter and Edgar Kelly, 2891 Mitchell.

Tuesday afternoon, featured by impersonation of Charles Chaplin, recitations, songs and the sale of lemonade and cake, realized $2.75 for the fund. Those who participated are Ruth Goodman, 6557 Wells avenue, Charles Gue, 1231 Thomas street, Ann Louis and Mary Taylor, 1335 Shawmut place; Ollie and Bella Grodnick, 1331 Shawmut, and Wilma Imry, 1144 Blackstone avenue.

A lemonade stand conducted at 2099 Thomas street for three days earned $1.20. Sade Bohroff, 1235 Glasgow street, and Dena Kaplan, 2608 Thomas street, were the little merchants.

A lemonade stand operated by little Janet Goldstein at Twenty-first street and Franklin avenue produced $1.06. Janet lived at 2024 Franklin avenue.

A lemonade stand at 4007 West Pine boulevard, conducted for the benefit of the babies, yielded $4. The three children who operated the stand are Martha Billings, 4011 West Pine boulevard, Marie Archambault, 4007 West Pine, and Clyde Pendleton, 4003 West Pine.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS EXPRESS DISSATISFACTION WITH BRITISH NOTES

Arguments Generally Regarded as Strong and Fair but Not Fully Meeting Issue—Point Out Difference From Germany's Case.

Great Britain's latest notes in justification of her embargo on goods shipped not only to Germany, but to adjacent neutral ports, are regarded by leading newspapers of New York and the country generally as unsatisfactory and calling for a further protest by the United States Government. At the same time there is a tendency to admit that Britain has a strong point in her favor in the precedents established by the United States in the blockade of the Confederacy.

Many of the papers also lay stress on the difference between the British and the German controversies by citing that the dispute with Germany is over the loss of American lives while that with Britain relates solely to trade. Comment from all sections of the country follows:

New York Times: The American Eagle has by this time discovered that the shaft directed against him by Sir Edward Grey was feathered with his own plumage. To meet our contentions Sir Edward cites our own seizures and our own court decisions. It remains to be seen whether out of strands plucked from the mane and tail of the British lion we can fashion a bow string which will give effective momentum to a counter bolt launched in the general direction of Downing street. Upon that our answer will turn, upon that its success will depend.

We are discussing questions of law and the prize law of the two countries is the same. If we can show Sir Edward that he misapplies the principles of our decisions, or if we can cite British decisions or British practices contrary to his present argument, we may be able to place Great Britain in the position of disadvantage where by her latest note she has placed us.

It may as well be admitted that these notes are very shrewdly drawn and the preparation of a convincing reply will be so difficult a task that it will put to the test Mr. Lansing's legal resources and Mr. Wilson's ability for presentation.

New York Tribune: There is no parallel between our difference with Germany over the Lusitania and any disagreement we have with England. Our cases with Great Britain are purely civil. Such of our cases with Germany as are civil, not criminal, will follow the same course. But we shall continue to regard murder as a different thing and refrain from using toward England the language used toward Germany just so long as Great Britain continues to avoid individual or collective assassination.

Plainly, the British note does not meet and cannot satisfy American demands. Between American and English interpretations of international law and precedent there is a wide gap. As Admiral Mahan foresaw long ago, the dominant naval power is endeavoring to rewrite international law. We are not bound to accept this revision. We certainly shall not accept any portion of it based upon British "necessity," which in turn grows out of German act.

But it (the note) does open the way to the ultimate settlement of differences either directly by diplomacy or indirectly by reference to a court of arbitration.

New York Sun: A reply similar to that made to Germany is due to Great Britain. The three notes published yesterday invite it. The rule of inflexible neutrality, of friendly vigilance for the protection of American rights, of an even attitude toward the contending Powers, goes to pieces when it is unequally applied. We have no doubt that it will continue to be applied impartially by our Department of State. That is the way to keep America "neuter" in the case of Germany.

New York Evening Post: In his answer, Sir Edward repeats precisely like a German. Any Government that pleads the justification of reprisals, in the very act confesses that its course, so far as it involves reprisals, cannot be defended legally. We said that to Germany; why should we not now say it to England?

New York Evening Sun: There is nothing objectionable in saying that the British message is apparently an honest endeavor to argue the case from basic facts and principles by logical methods. It makes no claim which offends humane sentiment or offends the sense of natural right. It makes no insulting proposal for the barter or sale of honor, and it resorts to no tricks or evasions in the way of suggested compromise. It seeks in no way to enlist this country as an auxiliary to the allied cause under sham pretenses of humane intervention.

Chicago Journal: If international law should be construed in such wise as to give belligerents the greatest possible chance to "get at" each other, Great Britain is right. But if, as all Americans believe, the function of international law is to limit the field as well as the occasions of conflict, and to guard most jealously the rights of neutral nations, then the contention of the United States Government must be sustained.

Chicago Tribune: The trade issue is not cleared by the correspondence to date and every indication is that it will be further complicated both by an expansion of the British repressive measures and by stronger American protests against them.

Kansas City Star: As between the Government of England and the Government of the United States the people of the United States are with their own Government just as they are with their own Government. There is no difference in the German Government.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: We have served notice on Germany that we could not make terms for a mutually satisfactory violation of international law. We must serve the same notice upon Great Britain, where any nation which proposes to violate this code, whatever its plea, and we must insist upon it.

Brooklyn Eagle: That this country should stand sturdily on its rights, that it should waive none of them, is superfluous.

BASEBALL POOL TICKETS SEIZED IN RAID; 4 MEN HELD

Letters Indicating Mails Were Used in Gambling Scheme Said to Have Been Found.

TRUNKFULL OF EVIDENCE

Effort Is Made to Replevin Mail but Police Hold It for Federal Authorities.

Four men are under arrest and a trunk full of baseball pool tickets, letters, drawings, poker chips and letters, purporting to reveal a use of the United States mails in connection with a lottery scheme, is held as evidence following a police investigation of baseball gambling.

The men are Charles E. Mackey, 1338 Chouteau avenue; John Jennings, bartender in a saloon at Eighteenth street and Chouteau avenue; John P. Dunslop, 3148 Rutter street. The trunk was seized in a raid upon Mackey's rooms last night after Mackey had surrendered at police headquarters.

Fifteen minutes after policemen had seized the trunk and its contents, a Constable served on them a writ of replevin for the articles. Chief of Detectives Alander refused to give them up, saying they were evidence to be placed before the grand jury and the Federal authorities.

Detective Sergeant Roach, head of the new gambling squad, said this morning that he had had a tip for some time that Mackey, who is proprietor of pool halls at 913 South Eighteenth street and 533 Delmar boulevard, knew something about widespread gambling on baseball pools. He had been unable to get any sort of confirmation, the Sergeant said, until two of his men yesterday arrested the saloon where Jennings is employed.

One of them, Detective Geislar, says he bought a baseball pool ticket from Jennings for 25 cents and immediately arrested him. Then he and Detective Kleinmiedt went to the saloon at North Eighteenth street. There they found four more tickets and arrested Poir.

Four said he had obtained the tickets from Dunslop, who was in the saloon at the time. Dunslop was arrested and told the detectives that he and Poir were agents for Mackey.

Walks on Narrow Ledge. The gambling squad then went to Mackey's room, which was on the third floor of the building. Geislar got into it by walking along a narrow ledge on the outside wall, between two windows. The officers did not find Mackey in the room, but they did find the trunk.

It was made like a traveling theatrical salesman's trunk, with compartments for tickets. In these the tickets on the baseball lotteries were found.

Each ticket contained the names of 24 baseball teams of the National, American and Federal Leagues. The practice is to punch opposite the name of one team in each league. This will give 204 possible combinations for each day's game.

The person who has a ticket, the three indicated teams of which make the greatest total of runs in a day, gets a cash prize. A larger prize also is offered for the holder of the three teams which make the greatest aggregate weekly score.

While the gambling squad was on its way to Mackey's room, Mackey was on his way to surrender. He simply said he had heard the police were looking for him. A few minutes later Sam Epstein appeared and signed his bond.

Because of letters which seemed to indicate a use of the mails in selling tickets outside of St. Louis, the police have decided to turn over part of their evidence to the United States District Attorney. The rest was reserved for the Circuit Attorney's office.

SERVICES IN MOSQUE IN GERMANY

Mohammedan Prisoners Will Pray Allah After Owa Fashion.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—The muezzin's call to prayer will shortly be heard thrice daily in a small town of the province of Brandenburg, and the faithful will praise Allah and Mohammed, his prophet, in a mosque built and consecrated according to the regulations and rites of the Koran. This mosque is in the prison camp at Wundorf, known as the "Crescent Camp," where some 4000 Mohammedans—Arabians, Gurkhas, Moroccans, Sudanese and Senegalese—are confined. The building is of considerable proportions, some 60 feet through, with a dome 75 feet high has been erected, and a fountain is provided for the ablutions required by the Koran.

A captured Hodja, or Mohammedan priest will officiate at the services and a Mullah will act as muezzin. The consecration of the building took place in the presence of the Turkish Ambassador.

ADMITS HE WRECKED TRAIN

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 5.—Harry G. Hontz, who gives Leighton, Pa., as his home, was in jail here today, having surrendered to the police last night and confessed that he wrecked the Scenic Limited on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad near Springfield, Utah, last Monday, when several cars left the rails and many persons narrowly escaped injury. Hontz said he threw a piece of angle iron under the train as it was passing to avenge himself on the railroad because a brakeman had ejected him from a freight train.

Hontz told the police he was responsible for several other railroad wrecks and the burning of the Leighton station at Leighton, Pa., June 6 last. He said he had been in the Government insane asylum at Washington.

FRENCH AUTHORITY TELLS WHY NO GAIN IS MADE FROM SEA TO SWISS ALPS

Concrete Trenches, Armored and Flanked With Rapid-Firers, Almost Impossible to Take Even With Aid of Artillery.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—An explanation of why so little progress is being made by the French and Belgian war zones, so far as actual ground gaining is concerned, is afforded in a statement from unquestionable authority, in which the almost insurmountable difficulties of the present struggle are set forth.

"During the last six months," says this authority, "from the North Sea to the Swiss mountains, there has been veritable siege warfare along the length of the broken line of trenches. In this warfare all strategic maneuvers are absent, because maneuvers are impossible on ground where every square meter is marked and swept by artillery fire. The only alternative is a frontal attack. Such an attack is smashed to pieces in one part or another against the formidable organization of defense, in which the resources of art and science have been employed by the two adversaries.

"In concrete subterranean works, armored and casemated, flanked with rapid firers and mortars, and linked to one another by marvelously concealed communicating trenches, which are protected by the fire of heavy batteries, dwell

the infantry abundantly provided with rifles and hand grenades. To take possession of one of these works, it is first necessary to dismantle these trenches and destroy the material which they shelter. This is the artillery task.

Vast Amount of Shells Required.

"No one before the war could have imagined the vast amount of shells required. Several thousand shells fired in a few hours on a restricted space are necessary for an attack which preparation is being made. But no matter how numerous the heavy guns or how well directed their fire, it often happens that the preparation has been insufficient. One or two rapid firers mow down the troops who climb from the trenches all ready for the charge, and after suffering heavy sacrifices the attacking party arrives at the first line of the trenches of the enemy. The opposing artillery with a literal wall of fire effectively prevents any reinforcements from advancing to the support. The troops who fortify the captured trenches, being subjected to the fire of much more accurate bombardment, as the enemy knows the exact range of their former positions.

"Such offensive movements could not be multiplied nor prolonged indefinitely, as much on account of the moral and physical effort which they demand of the men as on account of the losses which they involve. Neither can such offensive be improvised. Batteries designating an attack large quantities of material and projectiles must be gathered in one place previously appointed by the commander, advance fortifications dug and the ground minutely studied.

Stopped German Invasion.

"If despite these difficulties the French army renews an offensive at the price of a bloody sacrifice, it is with the conscientious mission of holding large enemy forces on the western front. By the Marne victory it stopped the invasion and ruined the first German plan, which was, first, to shatter France and turn then against Russia.

"By the victory of the Yser with the aid of the allied armies closing the line of defense, it effectively prevented the enemy from getting a foothold in Pas de Calais.

"By continuous offensive actions from February to July in Champagne, the Argonne and Artois it demoralized approximately 2,000,000 men and captured an enormous amount of material. Without allowing the enemy an instant's respite it forced the German staff to utilize on the western front reserves in barracks and arsenals.

"It would be a serious mistake to measure our effort by the ground conquered. The demoralization and wearing down of the German army is the real goal.

"Says Goal Is Attained. "We have attained this goal, since it has been proved that during these six months the enemy has suffered heavy losses, and taking everything into consideration he can only remove from our front eight per cent of his total effectives.

"The great battles on the western front were fought in Champagne during the months of February and March, between the Meuse and the Moselle during the month of April, and in Artois during May and June.

"In Champagne we have taken the enemy's defenses for a depth of from two to seven kilometers (from one and one-third to four and one-third miles) which repeated and heavy counter attacks have not been able to recapture. Between four and five German army corps have suffered heavy losses, two regiments of the guard being almost destroyed. On the captured ground nearly 2000 German dead were counted. We took 2000 prisoners, rapid-fire guns and a large number of trench cannons.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle we now occupy the Eparges crater, which was very strongly fortified. There two Bavarian divisions, having received orders to hold out at all costs, left heaps of bodies.

"To this great success must be added the success in the Bois de Ally and the Bois de Prete, where the Germans call 'Bois de la Mort.'

"In Artois more than 8000 prisoners, cannon of all caliber, a hundred quick-firers and bomb-throwers fell into our hands.

Company Reduced to Four Men. "Along a front of 10 kilometers (more than six miles) we have advanced from two to four kilometers and captured the villages of Ablain-St. Nazaire, Carancy and Neuville St. Vaast, transformed into fortresses by our adversaries, who brought up to stem our victorious offensive 16 veteran divisions, one company being reduced to four men.

"Besides these three principal actions, operations of less importance permitted us to take at Tournout 1200 meters of trenches and at Quenneville 2500 meters.

"The capture of Vauquois, in the Argonne, and Metzeral and Hartmannswillerkopf in the Fichtel Valley in Alsace, constituted brilliant victories for our troops. Judging from the desperate character of the fighting, the amount of munitions expended and the number of forces engaged, these engagements were veritable battles. Their preparation and realization represent large sacrifices.

"But even when engagements take place the life of the troops in the trenches is a continual battle. The first line of infantry, only a few meters distant from the enemy, enjoys not a single minute of quietude: it is under the constant menace of grenades, bursting shrapnel bombs from mine throwers, and there is continual fear of subterranean mines.

Continued on the Alert. "The infantryman must remain continually on the alert—occasionally in the smoke of asphyxiating bombs—hold himself ready at every moment to repulse an attack, repair fortifications, remove obstacles that have fallen into the trenches and live in the continued presence of death. Such a life demanding continual activity on the part of the officers, calmness on the part of the men and patience and bravery at all times.

"The French army has gained from its long sojourn in the trenches magnificent endurance; it has lost nothing of its eagerness and confidence. Its faith in the offensive remains intact; its morale is the admiration of those who command it. This morale is the best gauge of final victory by which our territory will be liberated, Europe freed and peace re-established."

"GERMANS TO U. S. WHAT THE GREEKS WERE TO ROME"

Head of German-American Alliance Says at San Francisco They Brought Much Culture.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—German influence in America for freedom, education, religion, culture and good citizenship was proclaimed second to none in an address here today by Dr. C. J. Hexamer of Philadelphia, president of the National German-American Alliance. Dr. Hexamer was the principal speaker on "German Day" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, which coincided with the national convention of the alliance.

"What Greece was to Rome," he said, "that Germany in the widest sense is to our beloved land, only with the further distinction and advantage in our favor that the Greek brought to Rome with his culture disgusting sensual vices, while the German, with his culture, brings to his new home sturdy integrity and a pure and happy family life."

Saved American Army. "German day" at the exposition was set for early August, he explained in commemoration of manifestos issued in Philadelphia Aug. 1, 1776, by German churches and societies declaring for independence and he cited historians to show that at the battle of Long Island "the Thermopylae of the American revolution," Pennsylvania riflemen under German Col. John Peter Kitchin saved the American army.

"The Teuton does not derive law directly from the will of the nation," the speaker quoted. "He claims for himself an inborn right, which the state must protect, but which it does not create and for which he is ready to fight against the world."

Easter, Christmas and Sunday schools the speaker said, were given us by the Germans.

"It may interest those who believe that all culture came from New England to know that the first ladies' seminary in the United States was established by the Moravians at Bethlehem, Pa., in 1763."

The speaker said the German-American "asks no political favors and prostrates his vote for no one." He said the census showed that Germany has furnished about 30 per cent of our so-called foreign population, while England—which I quote without insidiousness for comparison only—gave us 11 per cent.

Desired Proper Place. "Quiet in their tastes, deeply absorbed in the peaceful avocations of life, unobtrusive to the verge of diffidence, without clanish propensities, they have permitted their more aggressive neighbors to deny them the proper place even on the historic page."

In addition to the adoption yesterday of a resolution protesting against the traffic in war materials between the United States and the enemies of Germany, the alliance recommended the divorcing of the tariff from politics, providing that in all future city, county, state and national elections, members of the alliance shall work and vote for only such candidates as are favorable to German-American principles and ideals and pledging the organization to use its influence to place the saloon and liquor business on a healthier, higher and more dignified plane.

In adopting the resolution protesting against the traffic in war materials, the delegates unanimously rejected a proposed open letter to President Wilson on the subject as improper and too drastic in language.

The resolution carried a recommendation for the enactment of a law forbidding passenger traffic on ships transporting munitions of war.

The debate was against the wording of the proposed letter, H. C. Bloedel of Pittsburgh, the author, alone speaking and voting for it. Dr. Hexamer made it plain that any appeal to President Wilson would not be welcomed, but that he met the Germans with the aid of the grievances to the American people in an endeavor to alter public feeling.

Five state presidents and Dr. Carl Barck, head of the St. Louis City Alliance and Dr. Charles Weinsberg, president of the Missouri Alliance, threatened to resign if the letter were sent to the president.

History Evidence of Loyalty. The resolution dealing with the traffic in war supplies was drawn in the name of the 2,000,000 members of the alliance, as loyal American citizens. History was pointed to as evidence of the loyalty in the past, with the assurance that whatever events the future might hold, it would not find them less worthy Americans.

"However, as free citizens of this republic, we maintain the right to express our opinion upon the policies of our Government because we place the welfare of our commonwealth above blind subservency to the views of any official elected to serve the people," said the resolution.

"Therefore, in the present controversy, we deem it our solemn duty to do all in our power to prevent a breach between Germany and the United States."

The resolution then pointed to the American policy in Mexico, and the alleged permission in the case of England of virtual violations of international law, and said:

"Since America has declared for neutrality, we demand that our Government in dealing with foreign nations adopt the same standard of treatment."

The only change made in the election of officers was due to the withdrawal of A. P. Schuermann of Kansas City, Mo., as sixth vice president; Dr. Leo Stern of Milwaukee, Wis., and Dr. F. H. Dammach of Portland, Ore., the seventh and eighth vice presidents, each moved up one notch, and Hans Demuth of South Dakota was elected eighth vice president. Milwaukee was chosen as the 1917 convention city.

It was reported that the alliance had collected $48,130 for the German war relief fund since the war began.

Empire Tires RED WEAR LONGEST

RED Rubber as we cure it makes the springiest, toughest tire known. Empire RED Rubber is a poor conductor of heat, which means less loss from friction. Empire RED Rubber doesn't deteriorate standing still, which means longer life. The Empire Non-skid Tread is extra thick, meaning more mileage. Compare an Empire RED that has run four or five thousand miles with any other make that has given equal mileage. Then you'll know better than we can tell you.

PARIS JOURNAL EDITOR TELLS THE EXPERIENCES OF A NIGHT HE SPENT IN THE TRENCHES

Overstrung Nerves Take the Upperhand, When First the Darkness Falls, He Says—Then Comes the Nocturne of the Howitzers.

PARIS, July 29.—Summer campaigning in the trenches, the agony of the hour of twilight and falling darkness and then the long drawn out strain of the night's watching, working and fighting, all now systematized and carried on according to virtually fixed principles, are described from direct experience by

A Real Flesh Builder For Thin People

A New Discovery

This man and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of this whole world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are badly out of gear and need reconstruction. Cut out the foolish foods and funny savant diets. Omit the flesh creams, rich soups, and the like. But the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of them a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy "meat" there! Fat should be the result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 25 pounds in easily assimilated elements known to chemistry. They come in 40 tablets, a store, and are sold at all drug stores, and all other drug stores in St. Louis and vicinity sell them subject to a written guarantee of weight increase or money back—ADV.

one of the editors of the Paris Journal. With the strain so intense on the side of the French, it is clear the anguish of the night can be no less fearful in the German trenches.

"The sun slowly, like an enormous incandescent bomb, falls to the horizon behind the pine woods, which it lights up with a sinister glow as it gradually disappears. The night creeps on slowly, silently; step by step it invades the plain and buries it under its shroud of shadow. It is the hour when the trench becomes animated and, although always mute, is filled with movement, with a confused crawling," says the editor.

"It is the hour of the relieving of the guard, the hour of placing the listening outposts, the treacherous hour which requires a redoubling of the brain, of the power of the ear in order to avoid the patrolling, the incessant ambushes of an enemy always active, untiring, in order to foil in time the crafty attacks which, with the wires cut and the darkness, which acts as an accomplice, are suddenly launched in fiendish avalanches with hoarse and panting clamor amid the brusque and blinding smashes of the hand grenades, the short sharp flashes and dry, methodic crack of the machine guns.

When the Artillery Sleeps. "It is the hour also in which, the artillery has become silent through prudence, as it fears to betray itself by unnecessary flashes, and the bomb and the mine, the howitzer, the howitzer, the whole pack of shot, bark, and cannon break forth, with full-throated joy, cough and growl, vying with each other, without fearing the brutal reply, the imperative and irresistible roar of the long-bored cannon, whose all-powerful voice has become silent through necessity for the time being.

"In a long line through the narrow and sticky stretches of tortuous trenches deformed shapes, large and bearded, bent under heavy sacks and loads of covering, the men who all day were resting on the second line are coming slowly, painfully, to reinforce their comrades in the trench. Nothing is heard but the soft friction of the knapsack against the walls of earth, the dull pounding of the marching men, the short and embarrassed breathing, a few words in a low tone, sometimes an oath literally borne by the teeth, for the least noise brings unfurling the brutal and immediate punishment, a whistling salvo of the 77-centimeter.

Outpost Watches for Charge. "Little by little the trenches fill; at each hole, with fully provided gun, the soldier is watching, a shapeless, hairy mass fixed to the parapet, immovable and silent. Out forward in the middle of the protecting wire enclosure, crouching down in the shaded holes which have been reached by creeping, with eye and ear alert and finger on the trigger, scanning the hostile darkness with a glance, the watchers of the outposts attentively spy out on the black earth, a still blacker line which is the German trench.

"Nothing is seen, nothing is heard, not a single definite noise, not a breath that can be characterized, and yet this momentary calm, more profound because it is momentary, far from being tranquillizing, arouses anguish and anxiety. One feels that this silence is full of ill-defined movements of active life, hushed and stifled, of confused and dangerous rumors. Instead of enjoying the tranquillity of the hour after the obsession of the day's noise the mind works and draws up chimeras, the overstrung nerves take the upper hand, eyes are opened wide in an effort to guess what is going on in the opaque shadow, with the apprehension of not arriving on time or of being too late for a great effort. One senses one's back, without knowing why, as if expecting a blow to fall.

Night Has Its Allocated Toll. "But this dreadful depressing feeling does not last; action becomes imperative; work presses which cannot be done by day and which, like Penelope's web, or the work of the Danaids, continues to be done all over again each night without ever being finished. The wire enclosures cut up during the day by the enemy's cannon have to be stretched out anew, breaches in the parapet have to be closed, a part of the trench which has been filled in by shelling has to be deepened.

"The work is portioned out without noise, and each one sets about his duty. Under the protection of their comrades in the trench, ready for any attack, the workers, without baggage and carrying only their tools, actively creep out or even walk, where darkness permits it, across the open ground, climb parapets, reach their appointed places and hasten to make the urgent repairs and to accomplish the prescribed work. Those who remain inside the trenches actively handle the shovel and pick, while very carefully avoiding the least revealing sound. But, in spite of all precautions, the calm with which the night began does not last.

Sudden Flash Illuminates the Scene. "Brusquely cast from the German trench, without anything to forestall its coming, a luminous fuse breaks with a soft sibilant note, arises into the air, curves around and makes

JOBGING TRADE HERE EXPECTED TO IMPROVE IN FALL

Federal Bank Bulletin Says Good Wheat Crop Should Help Business Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—General business conditions throughout the country continue to show improvement, but until crops are harvested, the full measure of this improvement cannot be judged, according to a bulletin of the Federal Reserve Board just issued. Crop prospects are unusually bright and in several reserve districts war orders have brought a boom to many industries.

The St. Louis district shows little change. Wholesale orders, however, are more nearly normal and indicate improvement this fall. The wheat crop is expected to be larger than the five-year average.

The harvest in the Kansas City district will be less than last year, but crop conditions are good. Milling, livestock and lead, zinc and coal mines are active. Oil and the wholesale and retail trades are quiet. The financial situation is said to reflect a degree of prosperity heretofore unequalled.

Short Cotton Crop in Texas.
The Dallas district cotton crop will be materially reduced, and much of it probably will be held under warehouse receipts to save the market. Livestock, lumber and oil show improvement.

In the Chicago district there are signs of general improvement which is more distinct in lines benefited by foreign demand. Hesitation and caution are held responsible for less noticeable increases in other lines. Demands of railroads and war orders account for progress at Indianapolis, South Bend, Detroit and other of the furnace and factory centers.

Confidence in the crop outlook is reported from Minneapolis. Small grain excellent from the Great Lakes to the Rockies, with the exception of rice damaged in North Dakota. There is prospect of heavy ore shipments from Northern Michigan and Minnesota. Present conditions continuing, the report says, will bring considerable prosperity to the district.

Crop conditions in the San Francisco district are reported good, but lack of bottoms for exports is filling warehouses and delaying trade activity. The lumber outlook is more favorable.

Optimism in Boston.

Boston reports a feeling of optimism and a belief that improvement, although slow, may be expected. New York reports improvement in the steel, leather and textile industries, but building operations are curtailed. Encouraging reports from Philadelphia itself are lacking, although improvement is noted throughout the rest of the Philadelphia district. The outlook in Philadelphia is said to be uncertain, with improvement in many special lines, such as iron and steel. Exports of the port are increasing, bank clearings are higher, and agriculture condition outside the city generally favorable.

The steel business in the Cleveland district shows a decided advance since last spring, and tin plate is flourishing. Coke and coal have improved, there is a better feeling among wholesale and retail merchants, and underlying conditions are healthy.

In the Richmond district the cotton crop is a little late, but in excellent condition—though prices are low. Business generally is holding a steady position.

There is a tendency to improvement in the Atlanta district, but conditions do not show material change. Cotton mills are at full capacity, and new mills are under construction. Agricultural prospects are bright.

St. Louis Reserve Bank Makes Poor Showing on Karatage.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The first report on operations of the 13 Federal reserve banks, made public last night, shows that the system earned $18,588 from Nov. 16, 1914, to June 30 last, while expenses were $394,117. Only five of the 13—Richmond, Atlanta, Dallas, New York and Chicago—earned more than they spent.

The Richmond bank made the best showing, with net earnings of 7.5 per cent on the capital invested. St. Louis made the poorest showing, with expenses of 5.4 per cent greater than earnings.

Although under the law the banks are allowed dividends up to 5 per cent after expenses are paid, it was said tonight that none planned to declare dividends at this time. About 60 per cent of the money earned by all the banks was through discount of notes.

W. W. Hoxton, Deputy Governor and cashier of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, today said the small net loss shown in the bank's report was due to the fact that the borrowing demand in St. Louis is always light in the first six months of the year. The great demand for loans in this market is in the fall, when money is needed to move the crops.

Another explanation given by Hoxton was that the St. Louis banks have such large reserves of their own that they have not found it necessary as yet to draw upon the resources of the Federal Reserve Bank.

ATTITUDE OF THE TERMINAL TOWARD TRAFFIC FACILITIES

President McChesney Says That in Light of Experiences He Thinks City Should Take Lead in Improving Conditions—Ready to Co-operate.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in its decision in the St. Louis drayage case, declared that the terminal rail facilities of St. Louis had not grown proportionately with the growth of the commerce of the community. Congestion of traffic, the commission found, was sometimes serious owing to the lack of team tracks, freight stations and general terminal facilities.
The drayage case was decided June 25. The commission, in the investigation of that case, made an exhaustive inquiry into traffic conditions here, and found that large quantities of freight, both incoming and outgoing, were hauled across the bridges, to and from the freight stations of the railroads in East St. Louis. This practice was found to be due to the fact that several of the Eastern railroads had no freight depots and yards in St. Louis, and preferred to make St. Louis delivery by the transfer method; and to the further fact that the terminal facilities in St. Louis were not adequate for the handling of all the traffic.

W. S. McChesney, president of the Terminal Railroad Association, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter, said that the Interstate Commerce Commission had merely emphasized what he had been saying for 15 years: that the growth of the terminal facilities of St. Louis was not in proportion to the growth of the business of the city. The terminal, McChesney said, had been eager to expand its facilities and make them adequate for present and future traffic demands, but had been prevented from doing so by the city's denying the association the necessary enabling legislation.

The shippers of St. Louis were represented in the drayage case by the Traffic Bureau of the Business Men's League. The Traffic Bureau, in an analysis of the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision, reached the conclusion that the Eastern railroads, which do not now have depots in St. Louis, will have to supply them to meet the requirements of the commission.
The railroads which have no depots and freight yards in St. Louis, and make use of transfer wagons for hauling freight to and from their yards and depots in East St. Louis, are the Big Four, Southern, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Alton, Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis and Mobile & Ohio.

The delay in the handling of traffic, the Interstate Commerce Commission found, is principally on less than carload freight.
President McChesney said that he stood ready to co-operate with the business interests of St. Louis and the city officials in providing ample facilities for the prompt movement of terminal traffic shipped to or from St. Louis and through the St. Louis gateway.

Thinks City Should Lead.
In view of the efforts that the Terminal Association had made during the past 15 years to provide these facilities, he said he felt that the initiative ought now to be taken by the city and the business community.

"For 15 years the Terminal Association has done everything in its power to provide ample terminal facilities," McChesney said, "but has been prevented from carrying out its policies by the lack of co-operation of the city."

"In 1907 the Terminal Association spent a large sum of money to acquire the Ranken tract for development into terminal property. We wanted to spend $2,000,000 more in the development of this property, and in addition we offered the city $1,000,000 as compensation for vacating the streets and alleys in the tract, which had been dedicated, but never constructed. The ordinances were defeated.

"The Terminal was then forced to resort to other means for developing its facilities. We constructed freight yards on the belt lines, and in Madison, Ill., we constructed at a cost of more than $1,000,000, the finest yards in the United States, for the interchange of traffic passing through this gateway.

"Nucleus for Finest System."
"St. Louis has the nucleus for the finest Terminal system in the world. Our original plans were broad enough to take care of the entire traffic of the city, and can still be made broad enough to meet every requirement, if the city officials and the business interests will co-operate with us.

"Money was easy in 1910 when the Terminal wanted to develop the Ranken tract. Money is tight now. The injection of a rate issue into the question then resulted in the defeat of our plans. It was our contention then that the rate question had nothing to do with the development of terminal facilities. We asked to have the question of rates sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the only tribunal that had authority to settle it. That was finally done by the Post-Dispatch and the Business Men's League.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission found that the practices of the Terminal Association in making service charges were proper and fair. The United States Supreme Court passed upon the other features of our organization and found but two things to condemn—unanimous consent of members for the admission of new members and the contract requiring members to use exclusively the facilities of the Terminal. Both of these practices have been voluntarily abandoned by the Terminal before the suit was tried, so that actually after the decision was handed down not a single change was necessary in our business methods.

How the City Was Hurt.
"The refusal of the city to grant the Terminal authority for the development of its facilities, did not hurt the Terminal as much as it did the city. Let me cite an illustration.

"Two carloads of steel are shipped from Pittsburgh, one to a manufacturer in St. Louis and one to a manufacturer in Kansas City. The steel is to be converted into manufactured products, and re-shipped on the through rate. The Terminal Association makes exactly the same amount of money by passing the Kansas City car through its system, and does so for handling the St. Louis car. But the Kansas City car reaches the manufacturer promptly, and he converts the steel into finished products, and may have them shipped out again to his customers, before the St. Louis manufacturer can get this carload of steel.

"The result is that the Kansas City manufacturer has a decided advantage in a competitive market over his St. Louis rival. The Terminal has not been hurt financially, but the St. Louis manufacturer has been. Additional terminal facilities in St. Louis would remove the handicap of the St. Louis manufacturer.

"The Terminal Railroad Association wants only what is fair. I believe there is now a better understanding of the whole terminal situation, and that the public is disposed to co-operate to the end that all the interests of St. Louis may be best served."

McChesney said that he did not care to discuss at the present time the additional facilities necessary to handle the traffic. The Board of Public Service has authorized the use of the Ranken tract, under permits, for that connection. The Terminal, for that connection, is to relinquish the Transfer Railroad, extending near the river front from Baden to Arsenal street, to the city for use in connection with a municipal dock system for the development of river traffic.

A. F. Versen, secretary of the traffic bureau of the Business Men's League, said that no estimate had been made of the additional terminal, yard and depot facilities required for perfect traffic service. Those railroads not now having facilities here would undoubtedly, if they acquired depots and tracks in St. Louis, build them large enough to take care of the traffic not only for the present, but for the future, he said.

Versen said that the principal complaint now was the delay in the shipment of freight in less than carload lots, and that this had been minimized by the watchfulness of the shippers. Less than carload lots are often loaded on cars in St. Louis, transferred over the terminal lines to East St. Louis, and there loaded into other cars before being forwarded. The loading of the freight in St. Louis to obviate the necessity of rehandling in East St. Louis was the great thing needed to prevent delays, he said.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's ruling in the drayage case will make necessary the actual instead of constructive delivery of freight in St. Louis. Actual delivery will mean that the railroads must either build depots, use the facilities of the Terminal Railroad Association, or the depots of the transfer companies. The commission held that it was illegal for the carrier to unload the freight at its yard in East St. Louis onto a transfer wagon, and that when the wagon crossed an imaginary line in St. Louis to consider that actual delivery of the freight had been made.

MARRIED WOMAN AND MAN HELD

Michael Lukacevic, 22 years old, a laborer, was arrested yesterday afternoon at 21st North Eleventh street together with Mrs. Lepoc Elmita and her 3-year-old daughter, after an acquaintance had told officers that the man was suspected of being a violator of the Mann act.
Lukacevic is charged by the police with having taken the woman from her husband in St. Paul, and accompanying her to Detroit, thence to Ohio, and Indiana, and finally to St. Louis. He is held for the Federal authorities.

PAN-AMERICAN DEFENSE ALLIANCE TO BE ADVOCATED

Secretary of National League to Suggest It at Washington Conference.

WOULD DOUBLE STRENGTH

Winfield Jones Would Have U. S. Go Farther Than It Does in Monroe Doctrine.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—A Pan-American Doctrine, to supersede the Monroe Doctrine, which, if accepted, would form an offensive and defensive alliance between the United States and every republic of South and Central America, and between these republics, will be advocated at the conference of national defense, to be held in Washington Oct. 4-7, under auspices of the National Defense League.

The new doctrine, suggested by Winfield Jones, secretary, and one of the organizers, in 1913, of the National Defense League, if put in effect, would form a political and military solidarity of the Western Hemisphere.

Conditions Have Changed.
While the Monroe Doctrine forbids any European power from acquiring territory in the Western Hemisphere, it does not go far enough in the changed world conditions caused by the European war, in that it does not provide for naval and military assistance from any or all of the Pan-American republics in event the United States should be forced to fight to protect one or a number of South American countries from European or Asiatic aggression, in the opinion of Secretary Jones. He added:

"This alliance would at one stroke practically double the military and naval power of the United States.

"The combined naval and military power of the countries of the Western Hemisphere is strong enough to win in a war against any possible coalition of the other Powers of the world.

"The military and naval strength of all the South and Central American republics, according to the latest Government statistics available, is: Armies, peace strength, 195,190; war strength, 1,065,732; unorganized but of military age, 5,374,076; navies, 99 ships and 27,835 men.

Combined War Strength.
"As allies of the United States and of themselves, the South and Central American countries could bring, in a war for self-defense of any country of the Western Hemisphere, nearly 100 warships and 38,000 seamen, and a military strength of more than 7,000,000 men when all of service age were under arms.

"With such allies, the United States, with its boundless wealth and resources, its 100,000,000 population and its present and potential military and naval strength, could emerge victorious in any war against any combination of Powers."

DEATHS DUE TO ERIE'S FLOOD REACH 28 AND MAY GO TO 75

Estimates of Property Loss Increased to $5,000,000—Anti-Typhoid Vaccination Under Way.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 5.—Working in relays under a scorching sun, police, firemen and volunteers today continued their search in the masses of wreckage piled along Mill Creek by Tuesday night's washer for the bodies still believed to be in the debris. The coroner estimated the death list would reach 75. One body was recovered during the night, bringing the total to 28. Twenty bodies have been identified.

Mayor Sterns announced that he had offers of relief from many cities in Pennsylvania, but he thought the city would be able to take care of itself.

Physicians of the State Health Department have arrived and taken up the task of safeguarding the city from pestilence. Vaccination against typhoid is under way and disinfectants are being spread through the flood district.

Estimates of the flood's damage to property have increased from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000.

NEGRO GIRL 14, ROBS 2 MEN

She Takes $45 From Pedestrians Pockets and Runs Away.

The police are searching for a negro girl, about 14 years old, who is reported as having stolen $45 from two men last night on Beaumont street. Robert E. Freestone, 31 years old, of 2644 Bernard street told the police that he was walking south on Beaumont street near Washington avenue when the girl approached, shoved her hand into his pocket and ran away with $4. Earl Elligood, 28 years old, of 238 Geraldine street, reported that when passing Morgan street the girl grabbed him around the waist and took $35 from an inside pocket and took refuge behind three negro men in an alley.

GAMBLING CHARGES AGAINST TWELVE SALOON KEEPERS

Tri-City Law Enforcement League Gets Warrants Against Madison Men.

The Tri-City Law Enforcement League, formed as a result of a recent revival meeting in Granite City, has begun a systematic first to stop gambling in Granite City, Madison and Venice.
At the instance of the league, State's Attorney Bandy yesterday issued warrants for 12 Madison saloon keepers on a charge of maintaining slot machine gambling devices in their saloons.
Fred Fuger, one of the saloon keepers, already is under arrest and papers are being served on the other 11. This is Fuger's third arrest on a gambling charge. He was twice convicted and paid fines. Under the Illinois law a third conviction on a gambling charge may carry with it a penitentiary sentence.

W. J. Condy, vice president of the Law Enforcement League, today said the organization was pledged to eradicate gambling in the Tri-Cities. It has 300 members and is the direct outgrowth of a protracted tent meeting conducted by the Rev. Charles E. Wheeler, an evangelist about two months ago.

Others besides Fuger for whom warrants were issued are Patrick Conroy, Emanuel Auer, Beck & Risco, George
Ulsomer, George Darling, Jack Bennett,
Charles Enos, William Forcade, James Friedman and the proprietors of the Monarch Bar and of a saloon said to be owned by the Star Brewery.

Cardinal Mercier's Secretary Pardoned.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 5.—The secretary of Cardinal Mercier, Van Vrancken, who was sentenced to one month's imprisonment for disobedience of orders when the German soldiers dispersed Belgian demonstrators at the gates of Malines, on the occasion of the visit of the Cardinal, has been pardoned by the Governor-General.

Poet D'Annunzio as an Officer in Italian Army

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO, Italy's greatest living poet, shown on the left, is not a warrior by profession, but he has been given a commission by the King as a Lieutenant of artillery with a view to his writing a history of the war from the standpoint of a soldier actively engaged in it. Not even the poet's friends would deny that he is a much more interesting and attractive figure in civilian attire than in military clothes, but this is the day of the uniform in Italy and everybody must have one.

HOW U BOAT CAPTURED TWO SHIPS AND CONVOYED THEM INTO GERMAN PORT

Writer in Hamburg Paper Describes Methods of Holding Up Merchantmen at Sea—New System of Search.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

HAMBURG, July 25.—O. V. Gottberg has an article in the Hamburger Nachrichten, describing the experience of a submarine in preying upon commerce in the North Sea.

"The commander likes to travel above the surface," the article says. "He is convinced that his cannon is quite as good a weapon as the torpedo, and is of the opinion that the submarine must not only be able to destroy vessels, but also to capture them."

After describing the manner in which one steamer after another is halted by flag signals and compelled to send her papers on board the submarine for examination, a method replacing the old fashioned rule of visit and search, the story goes on:

"A third steamer has just been sighted.
She is flying no flag, is English, of course, and bears the name of 'Landen.' On being signalled to hoist her flag, she turns about and tried to flee.
The U-boat takes up the pursuit, and is soon able to fire two shots across her bow."

Given 10 minutes to disembark.
"Now she stops. Our boat pulls up alongside. The commander gives the Englishman ten minutes to disembark.
Since Feb. 18, they have learned to climb, and now they are in the boats in three minutes."

"But the commander of the little gray boats might easily question as to whether he can allow the foreigners to leave the ship. More than one crew of a hostile trading ship has rewarded the leniency of our men, often even after a refusal to obey instructions, by treach-erously attacking them."
Then follows the account of an attempt by a French tugboat, summoned to rescue the crew of a bark just sunk, to ram and sink the submarine. In-spite of this and other instances of attempts by merchantmen to sink submarines, the writer goes on to say that the boats of the Lenwarden were taken in tow by the submarine and brought up to the Meuse lightship, where they are put on board a Dutch pilot steamer.
"You don't deserve it," said the submarine commander to the British captain.

"Excuse me, sir," said the skipper, "I tried to get away," and he twisted his ap nervously in his fingers.

Herr Gottberg continues: "These 'mariners of the sea' have become so small!"

See Last of Their Ship.

The submarine returns to the Lan-warden, which is sinking slowly from a shell on her water line. The Dutch steamer follows, the Englishman having requested this, in order to see the last of their ship.

"This same request is addressed to our commanders almost without exception," the writer comments.

Next day a neutral steamer which tries to escape is overhauled and captured. She is found to be laden with food for England. Instead of sinking her, the submarine commander puts on board an officer and one man as a prize crew and sends her in to Zeebrugge.

"The food on board will supply an army corps for several days."
A short time after another food-laden steamer is captured, and the submarine successfully conveys both into Zeebrugge, the first submarine to accomplish this feat, according to Herr Gottberg.

Size of London Papers Reduced.
LONDON, Aug. 5.—Decreased advertising revenue and a shortage in the supply of chemicals necessary for the manufacture of white paper have resulted in an agreement by the proprietors of London's newspapers to reduce the number of pages. The Post today contained 10 pages, while the Times, Telegraph and Standard contained 12. They have been carrying 18 and 20 pages.

CALHOUN TO KEEP OFFICE

Neutrality League President Resides His Resignation.

After submitting his resignation as president of the St. Louis branch of the American Neutrality League at a meeting in the Planters Hotel last night, John W. Calhoun reconsidered his action and decided to retain the office. After Calhoun had resumed the chair there was an exchange of unneutral compliments between him and John C. Meyers, who financed last Saturday's "anti-war demonstration" at Delmar Garden. Each accused the other of having given out too many statements for publication in the newspapers.

A new form of application card to be signed by new members of the league was proposed. It reads: "Members will not by act, word or deed, display a preference for one nation over any other nation in any war or conflict." Kurt von Reppert said that as a German he could not be bound thus and that he would resign unless the wording of the application blank was changed.

The 1916 Hupmobile—worth $200 more but $115 lower in price than last year's model—is a remarkable automobile value—the best the Hupp Company has ever built.

With the service feature added, there can be no doubt that the 1916 model is the most exceptional value in the world.

Our merit test of the 1916 Hupmobile has convinced scores that there is no need for more cylinders, no need to pay more than the Hupmobile price. This service plan proves that no car at any price can give greater satisfaction.

We stake our reputation on these facts. Let us prove them to you.

You cannot afford to buy any car until you have learned the details of the first real national plan that wipes out motor car troubles.

We shall be glad to give you the particulars if you will call, and to show you the beautiful new Hupmobile.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Mr. Webster on Unemployment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
In regard to the people's industrial system, which I claim can and will quickly completely and permanently solve the problems of the unemployed, or what is much more accurate, the problem of unemployment, the problem involves the entire community as truly as it does the unemployed themselves. I wish today to state the simple principles involved in any consideration of the question.

Unemployment consists in a divorce between labor, which is the power of man to do, either with his mind or his muscle, and the necessary and convenient means for the employment of that labor.

The necessary means for the employment of labor is land. Land is all the material universe outside man himself. It includes not only the soil, as it is used in agriculture, but the waters, the winds, the sunlight, the wild animals and vegetable growths, and the powers of both vegetable and animal life to reproduce their kind, and everything which would exist unchanged if the human race was to perish from the earth never to return. All wealth is produced by labor from land. Unless there is ownership of one man by another, as in chattel slavery, then all men can produce wealth and keep what they produce, unless some obstacle prevents them from having access to the land.

But in our state of society capital is so very important in the employment of labor as to be practically a necessity. Capital is merely wealth which has been produced by labor from the land in time past, and which is now used by labor to enable it to accomplish greater results with the same amount of labor-power in the same time. To solve the problem of unemployment, we must find some sound means of restoring the connection between those workers who cannot be employed in the existing system and the land and capital necessary and convenient, respectively to its employment. To change the laws is the only system heretofore suggested to accomplish this. This remedy, even if adequate, will require much time, and involves the education of millions in technical matters which they are slow to investigate. Our claim is that we can do without any considerable delay, at least 95 per cent of all that could be accomplished by law, and completely restore such a connection between labor, land and capital as will completely, permanently and at the same time speedily abolish unemployment.

Hindenburg.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
German refugees from Canada are to name their New Mexican settlement Hindenburg. This is in accordance with human nature, but it almost seems that it were better to name the settlement after a name honoring America, the land that has given so many Germans so much protection.

A Tip to Unmarried Business Men.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
A business man should marry his, or a stenographer, because she understands his business and the business world. When in financial straits, and unable to hire a stenographer, his wife can do his work, and if she insists on keeping house, she will always understand and know when the husband is cross and unkind.

She knows the disagreeable parties he deals with during the day; she knows the weary, routine grind all day in a warm, stuffy office; she knows the arguments, the excuses, the misunderstandings and all of the disagreeable things connected with the word "business"; she knows when he returns home at night he needs rest, quiet and a low-colored woman to quiet his tired, unstrung nerves; she knows she must not expect to go to every night, but be contented and happy to remain at home and enjoy home life; she knows she can sometimes help him by counsel and good advice.

Moreover, she knows that a business man is human and is not expected to be an angel, and this also does this stenographer, the writer, know that with a sweet dispositioned common sense stenographer, a business man can live in peace and happiness.

A CONSTANT READER.

Right and Wrong.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong," said Commodore Stephen Decatur. "My country, if right, to be kept right; if wrong, to be set right," said Carl Schurz. It seems to me that Schurz was the better and greater of the two men. A man or a country should be ashamed to do wrong. AMERICAN.

OUR SLIPPING OPPORTUNITY.

The revival of the ship purchase bill at the next session of Congress is clearly indicated by Secretary McAdoo's letter, in which he insists upon the necessity of acquiring a fleet of naval auxiliaries which may be used for ocean traffic in time of peace. Summing up the argument for an American merchant marine, Mr. McAdoo writes:

If you want South American trade, if you want world trade, the indispensable step is American merchant marine to carry our commerce to the ends of the earth, under the protection of the Stars and Stripes. We shall never be able to carry our commerce to the ends of the earth under any foreign flag.

That the navy must have an adequate auxiliary fleet for transport service is beyond question. That we sorely need a merchant marine is beyond question. We are now fighting for the freedom of the seas, for neutral sea traffic, and we have to depend upon other nations—mostly belligerents—for the use of the seas.

We have a superb opportunity to acquire new markets for our products, but we are heavily handicapped by lack of ships.

There is little hope of private capital building up a merchant marine without subsidies. Why spend millions for subsidies subject to corrupt plums when the money can be expended to far better advantage for the purchase or construction of ships which must be purchased or constructed some time for the use of the navy and which can immediately be used to supply the pressing need of ocean transportation under the American flag for American trade.

With the co-operation of the Government we can immediately begin to acquire a merchant marine; without this co-operation it may be years before we get adequate American shipping. The American people, whose interests are at stake, should make their will to obtain a merchant marine known to Congress. They should demand action for the benefit of the people.

In declaring that for 40 years the New York "State government has been as representative as the Government of Venezuela," it is to be assumed that the former Secretary of State had no deliberate intention of casting aspersions on a friendly Latin-American Power.

A NIGHTMARE.

Let it be hoped the grim and horrible picture drawn by Senator J. H. Lewis of Illinois, in an address before the State Bar Association of North Carolina, will for a long time be turned to the wall.

That half the world should be at our throat, while the other half supinely looks on, is a possibility. That after the conflict is over we should be torn limb from limb to satisfy their greed might too come within this range. But both would appear vague and certainly not imminent. It is obvious the object of painting these heart-rending pictures is to bring more forcibly to the minds of the people the necessity of an adequate defense. But why try to scare them into it? Would it not be more dignified to appeal to their self-respect rather than to fear?

Two votes have given Springfield commission government. A single vote once elected a Governor. The old voter who has lost interest because in all his life his one vote has made no difference in results should return to his duty.

DISAPPOINTING TO THE HYPHENATED.

The new British note sweeps away all American protests against the seizure of ships loaded with our goods and their subjection to the judgment of prize courts in British ports.

The purpose of the Washington Government to send a vigorous rejoinder affirming the illegality of the order in council and demanding the observance of international law, will be highly disappointing to various hyphenated societies, including the German-American League and Alliances.

Everybody knows that the Washington Government is "crawling" before the maritime and other authorities of London. Its disposition, as has been pointed out countless of times, is to assist the British in every way. In fact, good reasons exist for believing that it is in secret alliance with them.

Why should a government that is trying to help London whip Germany be so concerned because goods destined for neutral countries having land communication with Germany, or even for Germany itself, are held up on the high seas? It should cheerfully submit to all measures that may deprive Germany of things she needs.

This disregard of hyphenated expectation will, of course, be disgusting, but American interests are more important than those of either belligerent. Permanent usages respecting the integrity of the seas have paramountly over any issues likely to be decided by the war, and must be maintained for the benefit of the generations that will arise after the fighting is over.

In capturing near Torreon a soap factory owned by a St. Louisan, Gen. Villa assures a supply of the war munitions of which many of his troops seem most desperately in need.

"FRIED CHICKEN DAY."

Destined to high rank among the great Days that a grateful people rejoice to honor, it needs no presidential proclamation to place Fried Chicken Day on a par with Thanksgiving. September First, an otherwise diurnal commonplace, is to be glorified into the chiefest of calendar events by the Missouri State Poultry Association without the aid of anybody but cooks.

Needless to say, the celebration's scope will be national. The A. A. Maryland and A. A. bama delegations will meet and mingle with representatives of other distinguished Commonwealths and distinctive styles or flavors. Though it may reveal sectional differences, Fried Chicken Day will unite our people in honoring a fundamental institution and bulwark of the nation. And the celebration will have a cosmopolitan if not universal racial character. It is one in which the colored people, if permitted, will gladly join the whites. Indeed, who is so well qualified to be Queen of the feastal occasion as the old Negro Mammy who, in our opinion, is the only one that really knows how to fry the beatific bird?

Fried Chicken Day will no doubt have its special appeal to persons, colored and white, and deacons, as well as to those God-fearing people among the laity whose hymn might be, "Every Day Will Be Fried Chicken Day By And By." We ourselves, as patriotic Americans, are not ashamed to confess a sentimental partiality for the plump, pulchritudinous pullet, the tender youngling, turned to consummate toothsome, buttered, battered or gravied as the case may be, and altogether the most edifying of edibles.

Fitting, we take it, that the celebration should be an all-day affair. In the intervals, if there be any, we hope to hear solved the mooted question, Which part of the bird appeals most to high connoisseurship—whether breast, wing, upper joint or back? Fried Chicken Day we promise our heartiest co-operation. Following as it does the commemoration of corn-on-the-cob, we only wish it might be succeeded by a Watermelon Day. Come to think of it, we would love to see all three events blended in one grand celestial symposium.

The Haitian peace party has been strengthened by the support of Gen. Blot. His is a name to conjure with in Haiti.

GERMAN-AMERICANISM AT ITS BEST.

The National German-American Alliance at its eighth biennial meeting in San Francisco adopted resolutions declaring personal liberty to be a fundamental doctrine in the society's idealism. It denounced "indiscriminate and unnecessary legislation" and the "enactment of laws affecting personal liberty in practically every state of the Union."

This is sound Americanism. Unnecessary legislation of a restrictive and meddlesome sort has become a great evil. Resistance to it is an urgent duty. The alliance declines to accept the passage of such laws as settling definitely the issue of their desirability. It has planned systematic action in all of the states for the repeal of many of the laws and the defeat of others of similar character.

In a banquet speech Dr. C. J. Hexamer of Philadelphia predicted that after the war the time would come when even their severest critics of the present would admit that the German-Americans are the most thoroughly Americanized of citizens. If some show an ex parte bias on developments of the war affecting this country, the existence of much other evidence revealing the extent of their attachment to American institutions and the completeness with which they have accepted the American spirit must be conceded.

THE $200,000,000 THAT STAYED HOME.

Figures are now available showing the manner in which the war has operated in keeping globe-trotting Americans at home.

During the year ending June 30 last, those who embarked from our ports for Europe were 196,385 fewer than those who embarked the year before. Assuming that each of these persons would have spent an average of at least $1000 on the tour, we have $196,385,000 as representing the money kept at home by reason of the closing of European lines of travel.

A very large number of these persons have been led to seek travel recreation in their own country. The benefit this year to our railroads and vessel lines and resort keepers is not all the benefit. The fashion of globe-trotting in the considerable portion of the planet included in America, once established, is likely to be permanent.

Immediately on the conclusion of peace a rush to Europe to view the localities made famous by the fighting may be expected, but after that we may apprehend that the number of Americans who take the grand tour will not increase with the astonishing rapidity of former years and that the number may even decline.

Burglars were caught attempting to get into Prof. Usher's home. Perhaps they were looking for the evidence of the "secret alliance between the United States and Great Britain," of which he is the discoverer—or should we say the inventor?

THE SWORDS OF WASHINGTON.

At his death Washington left to relatives four swords, never to be drawn save in defense of their country. What could more clearly indicate the policy to be followed by the United States? We may have a great army and a great navy, but not for the purpose of acquiring more territory or for the valing for that is destroying the monarchies of Europe.

OUR COSTLY ARMAMENTS.

The National Security League shows that it has cost the United States a billion dollars in 10 years to maintain an army of 90,000, while for $85,000,000 Switzerland had had for 10 years a citizen army of 500,000 always ready if needed. More startling still are the facts if we total our military bills for army, navy and pensions. When the great war began they were nearly $487,000,000 a year, not including some $10,000,000 paid by the states for militia—in round numbers half a billion dollars, or more than any other nation on earth then spent for military purposes.

Great Britain in 1914 was spending $230,000,000 for navy, $120,000,000 for army and $20,000,000 for army pensions; Russia $285,000,000 for army, $122,000,000 for navy; Germany $300,000,000 for army, $114,000,000 for navy. France, Italy and Austria-Hungary were well behind. For 1914-1915 Great Britain had planned a considerable increase, and Russia a tremendous addition to her army budget.

Our 1913-1914 army cost of $173,000,000 equaled that of Germany before the Imperial army act of 1913 in preparation for the present war. Our naval cost of nearly $140,000,000 was second only to Britain's. Our pension bill of $173,000,000 admitted of no comparison whatever. There was nothing like it.

Ex-President Taft computes that our active army costs $1900, for each man. The league figures a 10-year total cost of $10,000 a man. A large standing army on such terms is out of the question. For years we have been spending more than any other country for war purposes, past and future, without getting the worth of our money in a system of national defense. It is time for a change.

"CAN YOU FELLOWS UNSCRAMBLE EGGS?"

SOCRATES ON EFFICIENCY.

SOCRATES: I wanted to be fair to the Efficiency Board, so I went around yesterday to attend one of its sessions. Of course, when I appeared there Rodgers and the rest at once assured me that I could have anything I wanted without taking the test; but I merely wanted to see how the test is conducted, and was able to thank them without asking any special privilege. Soon after I arrived a man came in and asked for a position as a street worker. Rodgers asked him if he was qualified to do that sort of work, and he said his qualifications consisted in having a son-in-law on the Republican City Committee. I, therefore, at once identified him as one of the boys of whom we have heard so much, and was not surprised when Rodgers, utterly ignoring the applicant's close family relation to one so high in political power as a member of the Republican City Committee, required him to hark the now celebrated sack of sand.

Polemarchus: They do require that, then?
Socrates: Yes, and quite fairly, I think. I was originally disposed to believe that there might be some favoritism shown in this test, considering the ease with which the feat may be rendered easy or difficult by not quite filling the sack or tipping the applicant off to the trick of using rosin on the soles of his boots. However, since we have found Rodgers to be above favoritism, even when requested to show leniency by his political benefactor, the Mayor, we must believe that the applicant can or cannot hark the sack because he is either able or unable fairly to do so.

Thrasymachus: I am glad to hear you say that.
Socrates: I am glad to say it, Thrasymachus. A great deal of criticism has been leveled at the Efficiency Board, and not all of it has taken into consideration the great obstacle with which the Board has had to contend. We must remember that under the New Charter the method of employing people in the municipal service has been revolutionized. Formerly the fact that one was the father-in-law of a member of the Republican City Committee was all the qualification required of a man who wanted to work on the streets. Indeed, the community would ordinarily have had reason to be thankful if one so highly connected aspired to so lowly a post. At any rate, whether the applicant could really do any work on the streets was not a consideration, nor was it taken into serious account in any other branch of the public service. Those were the heydays of the boys, when public employment was a political consideration and one was supposed to do one's work at the polls. It was of no importance if one were on the job very hard with the city or not. If one were disposed to render the community a purely gratuitous service and do something useful now and then, it was not forbidden; but it was not required. The New Charter sought to increase the standard of efficiency in the public service. You may guess that the politicians protested. They resent that provision of the New Charter more than anything else, and now they have tasted of its bitter fruits to political organization they would get out and beat the whole Charter to get rid of that one provision if they had a chance. The efficiency hurts the boys, and it is by the boys the politicians live.

Polemarchus: You said something then.
Socrates: Did I? Then I am glad. I got the impression from my visit that Rodgers has what is rare in the public service, and that is backbone. He is for efficiency, whereas the Mayor, as I see it, is for a show of efficiency. There is a difference between those two things, and naturally that difference arises between the two men. Some of the requirements of the Board sound funny, but when they are viewed in the light of reason they are no more than any corporation would require in the conduct of its service. Certainly the physical ability of a laboring man is taken into consideration everywhere else. Why not with the city? It is also quite true that a corporation wants to know whether it is buying good or bad mules. Why shouldn't the city want to know that? Kielus is a good Mayor, but Rodgers is one remove from the politicians. It would not do to have Kielus conduct those tests. Think what it would be, too, to have them conducted by Hankins Weekius or Tubius Beckers. What a farce efficiency would become, and what a swindle the city payroll would be in the light of value for value received! That is all, I think. I just wanted to set you young men right in the matter.

Glaucou: It is very kind, Socrates.
Socrates: Thank you, Glaucou. Now let us plan to walk around town this evening and see how many bank clerks have to work at night.

HOW LONG! CAPITAL PUNISHMENT, HOW LONG!

It must be that the Call of the Soul which prompts us to choose the Right rather than the Wrong will yet find the heart of MAN strong enough to rid him of all his gross inhumanities.

WHY do ye clamor for another's blood?
The God of Vengeance makes you drunk with Hate.

Are all the dreams of Human Brotherhood To fail? Your passions, still insatiate,

Prompt stern Revenge to strike its harder blow,
While pity stands without your door and weeps.

Will ye not let her in, or must she go
To other souls where yet the conscience sleeps?

Ye say, "Tooth for a tooth," "Eye for an eye"—
How Malice flaunts abroad its bitter phrase!
And would ye lead another to die,
And steal some later chance to mend his ways?

No heart so dead, but yet some spark doth burn—
The fires of HOPE burn long as life doth last—
Far better, then, to help a soul return;
Retrieve, perchance, the sad and bitter past.

Not yours the right to doom a MAN to die,
E'en though his hand did strike the murder's blow,
Do ye forget your infirmity?
Strong though ye be today, yet, can ye know

Tomorrow's strength? Why would ye be the "first"
To "cast" the "stone" upon a weaker man?
And can ye not forgive, or, will ye thirst
For black Revenge to work its darker plan?

The laws of Justice are stained with Legal Blood!
Could Justice add one wrong unto another?
We strengthen Evil and crush out the Good
By sending to his death a weaker brother.

The gibbet and the rude electric chair,
Like other relics of the barbarous days,
Sometime will stand among the things that were—
Reminders of the past and cruel ways.

Man's Heart is true, and pulsed with kinder aims;
Revenge will die; Compassion yet will live;
Hate yields to Love that makes its stronger claims,
'Till man, at last, has learned how to forgive.

N. Y. K.—Drenching everything in which fleas could lurk with gasoline once a week for three successive weeks is one method of getting rid of these pests. But remember that there must be fire or light in the house while the gasoline odor remains. This treatment also gives relief from roaches and all manner of bugs, especially those that infest bedrooms. When it fails it is because inhabited places have been overlooked. The price of extermination is vigilance and repetition.

Freemasons are only secret order banned by that church everywhere.

R. B.—German-owned freight vessels "interned" in our ports may be purchased. Strictly speaking, merchant vessels are not interned; only warships are interned in the sense that they surrender the right to go to sea until hostilities are over. Merchantmen may depart if they have the proper clearance papers and do not seek to evade the neutrality laws by carrying supplies intended for the use of warships awaiting outside our jurisdiction.

LUKE.—(Supplemental.) As to halting the Springfield Republican's Italian says: "The danger comes in, of course, if the ballast is insufficient or improperly distributed, and this is the point looked at by those whose first suspicion in the event cases fell on the water tanks. If a ship ballasted with stone or pig-iron, properly secured against shifting, there can be no doubt as to how matters stand; pig-iron and stone cannot mysteriously disappear. It is the stability of a vessel depends upon the quantity and distribution of water in a system of tanks. Obviously there is a good deal of room for uncertainty and for wonder: the supply of the distribution may change radically and insidiously. As the ship's stability is a matter of life and death, a careless or incompetent ballast officer may make a dangerous mistake. That is the reason for the caution of the engineer who in connection with the Eastland case has been quoted as saying that a vessel ought not to be loaded for stability as water ballast; that at most water tanks should be only partially filled and perfect the trim of the ship."

"But 'budding genius,' marvelous scope of voice," grand delivery, oratorical effect." Tell you, Nancy, that fellow said I was a mixture of Caruso and Patrick Henry."

"Well, even so, Joel," admitted his wife, with a barely suppressed smile, "isn't leading the choir, being grand master of your lodge and calling home the cows till the walking rings enough exercise for your rare gifts?"

"Cows!" spouted Joel disdainfully. "Say, Nancy, you degrade me. All right! Wait and see. I'm an orator, and I'm going to develop my gift!"

"He's got the bug," said old Mr. Morse, his father-in-law, philosophically, "and it'll have to work out of his system."

"Well, Nancy," announced Joel one morning a few days later, "I'm going away for a day or two."

Nancy was sorrowful, but silent, awaiting her husband's further words, suspecting that it had something to do with his newest whim.

"You see, ever since that day that the circus got a cold and I relieved him at the megaphone, I've remembered his words. He said he never heard such a grand vocality. I think he called it. He said I'd be a wonder on the stage or rostrum. I've been practicing since at odd times. That circus fellow gave me the address of a theatrical agent in Plymouth. I'm going there to see him."

"Alone, Joel?" ventured gentle and polite Nancy.

"No, Ned Wallace is going with me to sort of keep me company."

Ned agreed to a plan.

NANCY'S eyes brightened. The allusion to Ned gave her a hopeful idea. While Joel was downtown arranging for his trip she sent for Ned. "Young man," she said with mock severity, "do you know that I hold your fate in my hands?"

"If you're referring to my liking for your pretty sister, Winnie, I guess you're right," admitted Ned meekly. "I am. Now then, you are going to the city with Joel. If you bring him back cured of his folly, I shall welcome you as a brother-in-law. If you don't—"

"I shall put off the engagement for two years."

"I'll try," said Ned humbly, "but Joel has got it bad."

From that moment Ned set his wits at work to accomplish the design in view. On their journey to the city he did not try to discourage Joel. He knew that it would be of no use. Joel's mind was mightily set upon his mission.

The morning after their arrival in Plymouth Joel started out to call upon the theatrical agent, whose card the circus man had given to Joel.

They located him in an office, the walls of which were covered with portraits of stage celebrities, from leading tragedians down to vaudeville song and dance favorites. Joel stated his mission.

"Ah, I see," bowed the agent, with a twining smile at the corner of his lips. "All right—$10, please."

"For?"

"My advice—usual fee. Take 10 minutes. I'm a busy man."

"All right," said Joel, "I'll give you 'The Roman Gladiator,' tragic, and sing 'The Miner,' deep bass."

"Fire away," directed the agent, throwing himself into a chair, looking bored.

Now, Ned had never before witnessed one of the specialties of the gifted Joel. He had heard him sing in the choir and about elections times, but this was a rare repetition.

A Facial Contortionist

JOEL had some voice—in fact, too much of it. "The Gladiator" he repeated made Ned smile. He must have been born with a cold. The funny part of it, however, was the most exasperatingly funny spectacle Ned had ever come across. Even the agent was stimulated. He sat up, his face aglow with amusement. Ned hid behind a screen and held his sides to keep from yelling outright.

It was the gestures of Joel that were especially ridiculous. "In the far east glow," and he glared at the south. "Up among those holy stars" and his finger pointed through to China. "I am rock-rooted"—and he stood limp.

Dresses to Be Worn When Playtime Hours Are Over

Dainty Little Afternoon Frock Not Only Makes Young Girl Happy but Develops Beauty and Style Sense That Is of Value Later.

ALTHOUGH midsummer is not the season for extensive consideration of children's clothes, or grownups' either, it is nevertheless a time when the apparel of the younger girl shows clearly what forethought in this respect her mother has accorded her. Sensible, plain little dresses for playtime bespeak refinement, but when playtime is over a dainty, modish little afternoon frock is no more than a child's due. It not only inspires a sense of style, which will afterward develop into a personal attribute, but it makes the little girl appreciative of her clothes to the extent of being careful of them, thus aiding in the development of neatness.

Such frocks do not have to be elaborate, but a dainty, inexpensive material can be developed distinctively on simple lines. As an example, either one of the two very different frocks here shown will serve admirably.

For the slender, vivacious petite girl, the ruffled frock at the right would be pretty. Of fine white batiste or organdy, the straight full skirt is made fuller by three narrow ruffles near the bottom. Below them a band of transparent lace delicately emphasizes the original width of the skirt. The same sort of lace on the waist is given a more conspicuous part, being used for a wide square yoke into which flaring sleeves are set. The effect is delightful in combination with the three narrow ruffles which comprise the whole lower part of the waist. Should the use of lace be considered too elaborate, embroidered batiste in an all-over pattern would do well. Also a finely striped dimity in some color would create a real modish effect for the yoke and sleeves and the skirt band, with all the rest of the frock plain white. A sash of colored ribbon would complete the frock effectively, and the same color stitching could be worn.

The frock at the left is quite picturesque in its quaint simplicity. A plain little bodice and a straight full skirt are given an unusual trimming by loops of picot, edged ribbon matching the dress in color. Drooping from the bodice and bottom edge of the skirt they suggest a carelessness coincident with youth. Except for the soft little inner yoke, the bodice might seem too plain, but this is gathered with a tiny velvet string which ties in front. Almost any summer material is adaptable for this design, including voile, French crepe, silk mul, batiste or even organdy. The sheer crisp quality of this last mentioned would contrast charmingly with the lustrous ribbon trimming, which would be pretty in Delft blue. Contrarywise, a soft silk mul would contrast prettily with crisp taffeta ribbon trimming.

Pop's Mutual Motor

By Alma Woodward

AT Pop's usual coming-home hour there was a great scraping and sliding of keys outside the door. Ma concluded immediately that there was a reason. She dashed out into the hall prepared to greet him as pugnaciously as convention demanded, but stopped, amazed, as he stepped over the threshold—sober.

Under his arm he bore a sheaf of legal-looking documents. Also they stuck out from every pocket in his clothing.

"These are insurance policies," remarked Pop proudly.

"Insurance! Life insurance?"

"Automobile insurance."

"You must be crazy," scoffed Ma. "I never heard of anyone insuring a car in more than one company. What's the idea of the tonnage in white paper?"

"This man is agent for every kind of automobile insurance there is," began Pop. "What's the use of carrying one kind of insurance? Whatever you're insured for never happens—it's always the other thing, and then you can go whistle for your money. With these I'm entirely covered and I can go out in the car and take any one with me, secure in the knowledge that my different insurances will protect me."

He spread them out carefully on the table.

"This is collision insurance. This is owner's life. This is owner's guests' life. This is fire. This is carbueter and magnet insurance. This is tire. This is cylinder insurance—for instance, if you should blow the head out of one of the cylinders. See? This is speed—if you're nabbed for speeding, the policy pays your fine. This is a small policy that pays your fine for contempt of court if you're tempted to cuss the Judge. This is—"

"Enough!" roared Ma. "I think you're a nut! And the man who sold you these KNOWS that you're one of the born-again-minutes."

"Is that so? Well, you'll see where the benefit is very soon. I've always been nervous about taking people out. Now I'll ask everybody."

So, next day being Sunday, he did ask as many as could squeeze into the car. Nothing happened for 50 miles. The engine didn't even sneeze once. But, on the fifty-first mile, suddenly the car started to leap from the road and descend with horrible force. It did this about every 10 feet, producing quite the effect of a jaunting car.

Pop shut off the gas, looked at every blamed thing that MIGHT be the matter, found nothing and turned her on again. Much to his surprise and disgust, the performance was repeated. As he shut her down for the second time, Ma leaned over and whispered, confidentially:

"That's one kind of policy you overlooked, Milton."

"What's that?"

"One against bronco busting," giggled Ma.

Olga and the Dwarfs

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONCE upon a time a poor cobbler lived in a small hut, with his wife and daughter. This girl, whose name was Olga, was very beautiful and as good as she was handsome.

Now in a fine house near the cobbler's home was a great lady, who had an only daughter, but this girl, whose name was Etan, was a child of very cruel and jealous nature. When she drove out in her grand coach passing the humble hut she saw with envy the beautiful Olga milking and sweeping, and was angry that her own daughter did not do something which would ruin the cobbler's family.

Now, upon a hill above the village there was a big pond whose waters were kept in place by heavy stone walls, and in these stones lived a queer little company of dwarfs. Every one was decided to do something which would ruin the cobbler's family.

ONE evening Etan and her mother were walking and stopped to rest right by the dwarf's cave. "I know what I can do, mother," said Etan. "This pond is huge and holds thousands of gallons of water. I will get the dwarfs to pull down the rocks some dark night and let the water flood the valley—this will sweep away the cobbler's hut and we shall never again hear of his family."

"That is an excellent plan," replied the wicked mother. "I will see the chief of the dwarfs about it at once." She looked around and there on a rock sat the dwarf chief, tapping his wooden shoes against the stones and singing softly to himself.

"You have lived in these walls on my land for many years," said the mother to him. "Now I wish you to do me a favor. Tonight let the rising of the moon I wish to get all your men together and tear down the wall around the pond on the northern side."

"But, surely," exclaimed the little man in horror, "you do not wish to destroy a good man and his kind daughter?"

"Kind daughter, indeed," screamed jealous Etan. "She is a mean creature, and the world were well rid of her. You are living on our land and must obey us—or you will suffer yourself."

Without a word the dwarf leaped from the stone and disappeared within his cave.

"He will not dare disobey me," laughed the wicked woman, as she went back to her grand home.

Early in the evening Olga heard a tap on her window, and saw the dwarf sitting on her sill.

Sandman story of good little girl who was saved from death because she was kind to her fellow creatures.

"Do not tell a soul," whispered the elf. "But I want you to come alone to the southern wall of the pond at the rising of the moon." And he vanished in the grass.

At the first gleam of the moonlight Olga climbed the hill and stood on the south wall of the pond far above the valley. Far off to the north lay her own home, and right below at her feet the great stone house of the wicked woman was shimmering in the golden glow. Olga saw that dozens of the dwarfs were busy pulling out the stones of the wall and that the pond was about to give way.

"Step back a hundred yards, Olga," shouted the dwarf. "I am going to send this flood right down on that house where the mother and daughter are listening, hoping to hear the water sweeping your home away. They ordered me to drown you—it is they who will meet that fate themselves."

Then with a rush and a roar the pond broke loose and a wall of water dropped down the hill, boomed over the grand home of the cruel woman, and in a moment it was no more. There was nothing to be seen—save a few timbers floating away on the waves.

"When you get home look at the kitchen table and see a present we little men have placed there," laughed the dwarf.

Feeling very sad about the fate of the woman and girl, but knowing they had brought it on themselves by their cruelty, Olga ran home. There on the kitchen table was her old, rusty dishpan piled high with gold-glittering nuggets that the good dwarfs had brought from their caverns to reward her for her kindness.

Some New Recipes

Macaroni Croquettes—One cup of cooked macaroni, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, ¼ cup of milk or stock, a few drops of onion juice, salt and pepper and ½ cup of cheese. When well blended add milk, onion juice and seasoning. Cool, add macaroni, shape into croquettes, egg, then crumbs again, and fry in deep fat.

Cheeseballs—One cup grated cheese, ½ cup fine breadcrumbs, 5 drops Worcestershire sauce, egg well beaten. Mix together, roll into small balls and just before time to serve plunge into hot fat. Fry delicate brown. To be served hot with salad.

Melon Conserve—Peel and cut the rind into small pieces, cover with weak salt water and let stand over night, then soak in cold water several hours. Drain and add water to cook until clear. Drain, and to each pint of melon add one of sugar and 1 or 2 lemons sliced. Cook very slowly for 2 hours.

Potato Anisette—Boil some potatoes until nearly tender, cut in thick slices, butter a baking dish and arrange the potatoes in layers, putting between each layer sliced bacon and grated cheese. Moisten thoroughly with a little stock or white sauce, cover with grated cheese, dot with bits of butter and bake half an hour.

Bean Porridge—Take the liquor that corned beef has been boiled in and be sure that it is not too salt. Put a cup and a half of medium-sized beans in liquor and let them boil slowly until soft, but not long enough to lose their shape; then add a pint of hulled corn and boil half an hour. When ready to serve thicken with corn meal to suit taste.

GOV. DUNNE TO INVESTIGATE GRAFT CHARGE IN DENTAL BOARD

Executive Home From Western Trip
Indicates That He Will Summon Accused Members to Springfield.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 5.—Gov. Dunne, home at midnight from his trip with the official party to the western seaboard, indicated strongly that his first official act would be to summon two members of the State Dental Examiners' Board to Springfield to show cause why they should not be removed from membership of the board.
The two board members under fire for alleged grafting are N. W. Cox of Cairo and B. A. Smith of Champaign. James H. Burdett, president of the State Civil Service Commission, made the investigation which led to the report which

Gov. Dunne read on his way home, on which he based his action.
Irregular transactions of a gross nature are involved in the charges against the two men.

LINCOLN, GERMAN SPY, ARRESTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

Former Member of British Parliament Held in New York for Extradition Papers.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Ignatius T. T. Lincoln, a former member of the British Parliament, was arrested in Brooklyn last night on a Federal warrant charging forgery amounting to $500.
He was locked up to await extradition papers from England.
Lincoln, according to his own admission, was a German spy. He was born in Austria, and when he went to England he had his name legally changed from Trebitch to Lincoln.
Lincoln was arrested by the Brooklyn police at the request of the London authorities on a charge of forgery and is booked simply as "a detained prisoner."
A dispatch from London, June 24, said the forgery charge against Lincoln involved two bills of exchange, one for $1000 and the other for $400. In the latter case he is alleged to have victimized his benefactor.

Lincoln's revelations of how he had been a German spy were printed in the Sunday Post-Dispatch magazine.

POWERS TO ASK FOR NEW TRIAL OF ELECTION CONTEST CASE

Constable Who Was Unseated Plans to Appeal From the Decision of Judge Rasmussen.

Counsel for Anthony W. Powers said today a motion for a new trial preparatory to appealing to the Supreme Court would be filed in the case in which Circuit Judge Rasmussen yesterday unseated Powers as Constable in the Fourth District and seated Charles H. Turpin, a negro, who contested Powers' election. Powers has been serving since the November election, succeeding Turpin, who, on the face of the returns, failed of re-election. The salary of a Constable is $150 a month and fees. Turpin will be entitled to the salary from the time Powers first took office. When the motion for a new trial has been passed upon Turpin can assume the office, as an appeal in an election contest case does not serve as a supersedeas, his counsel assert. Powers is a Democrat and Turpin a Republican.
In a recount demanded by Turpin the Board of Election Commissioners reported that the vote between Powers and Turpin was 274 for the former and 274 for the latter. Turpin alleged that certain ballots counted for Powers were illegal, while ballots withheld from him (Turpin) should have been counted. Judge Rasmussen found that 28 ballots which the board refused to count for the negro were legal and should be credited to the contest.
The court refused to allow 10 unnumbered ballots which had been counted for Powers and two Republican ballots where the voters had "scratched" Turpin.

14 CORPORATIONS PROTEST AGAINST TAX ASSESSMENTS

Papers Filed With Board of Review
In East St. Louis Objecting to County Treasurer's Figures.
Fourteen large manufacturing corporations of East St. Louis have filed a protest with the St. Clair County Board of Review against the real estate and personal tax assessments made by East St. Louis Tax Assessor O'Day and St. Clair County Treasurer Waring. The 14 companies who filed the protest were: Aluminum Ore and Cooking Utensil Co., American Steel Foundry, Aluminum Ore Co., City Water Co., Corns Mills, East St. Louis Light and Power Co., East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co., St. Clair County Gas and Electric Co., Wiggins Ferry Co., Morris Packing Co., Swift Packing Co., Armour Packing Co., General Chemical Co., and the Eads Bridge Co.
The total personal and real estate tax assessment was over $12,000,000. The Aluminum Ore and Cooking Utensil Co. returned a personal tax assessment of $77,000 and Assessor O'Day raised it to $107,000. The County Treasurer gave the tax assessment at $1,000,000. The Aluminum Ore and Cooking Utensil Co. is protesting the large personal tax assessment. The return of the largest personal tax assessment was made by the Eads Bridge Co., with an assessment of $5,500,000 and the largest real estate assessment was $1,000,000 by the Wiggins Ferry Co.
The assessment on the Swift, Morris and Armour packing companies was $300,000. The board of reviews will meet next week to pass on the protests.

FORT SMITH SALOONS CLOSED

FORT SMITH, Ark., Aug. 5.—This city, which for years has been known as one of the foremost whisky towns of the country, became a stranger to saloons just one hour prior to the expiration of July. The order of Judge Little, made last March, stipulated that the liquor places should close out at midnight, but the municipal closing law names 11 o'clock as the hour.
At some of the saloons the police were required to force prospective customers out when the final hour came. Some paid for liquor they had bought, others forgot to pay and many seized bottles and fled to the street. Sales toward the end were mainly by bottle.

Umpire Byron Outpoints Manager Huggins, Dolan and Roche in Word Fest

Eccentric Arbitrator Puts Out Last Two and Shades the Rabbit in Battle of Ready Wits—Bill Loses a Couple of Bad Decisions on Balls and Strikes.

By W. J. O'Connor.

MAYBE Jack Roche didn't intentionally hit Bill Byron in the back with the ball during yesterday's double-header, and maybe it wasn't Jack at all who threw the ball. We say "maybe" it wasn't, because sometimes you're honest, and we didn't take the trouble to ask Jack, because he's an honest mick and it wouldn't do him any good to admit it through these columns.

But, anyhow, Byron was beaten and Al Eason came tearing in from first base and whispered something in Byron's ear, after Bill had walked to the Cards' fence and tried to ascertain from a policeman just who it was that beat him. In the very next inning, somebody on the Cards' bench objected to Byron's decision on strikes. Bill tore off his mask, revealing a face distorted with anger, and yelled:

"That's enough, Roche! Now, you beat it."

The laugh was on Byron. Roche was coaching at first at the time, and he couldn't have committed anything on the bench, so Byron was booed. But he was out for revenge and he got it.

Byron a Bad Listener. He pulled a couple of bad ones on Lee Meadows and Huggins came rushing forth. Byron met him halfway.

"Back in your office, Huggins," said Bill, who is decidedly familiar at times. "You listen to me," shouted Huggins.

"I'll tell you more words and you'll get the gate, rejoined Byron. "Just one word and out you go."

Hug hit his lips and beat it. And Byron proceeded to sing and stomp to his heart's content, ruling with a mailed fist and doing all of his latest tricks for the edification of the best populace. However, things soon began to drag. No Byron called a bad strike on Dolan, who had been acting smart behind Byron's back.

"That finishes you," said Byron, and Cook effected himself from the picture. Then Huggins got in the game just to acquire a license to talk. Hug couldn't find much to munch about for two innings, but in time Byron tossed out a soiled ball to Tressau.

"Get lost," yelled Huggins in his very best dictatorial delivery. And then they went to it.

"Because I said so."

"Well, that's one's all right. I can see that," said Byron.

"That's about all you can see."

"Nope. I can see your finish if you don't shut up."

"What for?"

"Because I said so."

"Well, that's one's all right. I can see that," said Byron.

"That's about all you can see."

LAUBIS AGREES TO SWIM WITH FIVE MILES FOR TITLE

Women's City Championship May Also Be Settled in Match Race the Same Day.

Coach Tom Whitaker of the Missouri Athletic Association swimming team announced this morning that Herman Laubis is willing to meet Chauncey Heath in a special five-mile race for the city championship.

"As I understand it, a Mr. Ed Keogh of the Century Club is planning to put up a suitable prize for a special five-mile race between the two stars," said Whitaker. "Talking for Laubis, I will say that he is willing to go through with the race. I have not even heard, but I will see him and am going to try to put it over."

"If Heath and Laubis meet in a special race it will be the best river event ever staged in the city. The only stipulation I will make is that it must be held two weeks before the 10-mile race."

Whitaker also announced that Miss Frances Billabauer had decided to accept the challenge of Miss Evelyn Burnett for a five-mile race. Both are pupils of Whitaker and have been training three times a week.

If Whitaker succeeds in getting Laubis and Heath together, the two match races will probably be staged on the same day. Miss Billabauer would show a batting average of about .66. He won six arguments and lost three, a fair day.

Byron Sheds All Troubles. Byron is speedily becoming an institution. As a laugh-getter he's in Willie Collier's class. And as an umpire he's a great comedian. But if you think he's worried over his fate you're foolish. He can sing in the face of great adversity and we have it from one of the players that he burst into song yesterday in the midst of the biggest argument.

As he dusted off the plate while his fans hushed he began to sing to his own music.

Showing that he didn't blubber while he had only one misfortune. Brainard spiked him on the shin in making a clumsy putout at first base. It's a little, but it's a little. It was shiny all over. It's a better thing than a head pulled, and Klem is the best ideal of pulled. However, Klem had better look alive. Lord Byron is stealing his stuff.

New Record Is Probable. It is expected that the record for the course, which at present is held by Miss Burnett, will be broken. Miss Burnett set her record last year, when she covered the two miles in 22m. 48s.

In the recent Western Rowing Club, Heath clipped the record owned by the Burns, who was expected that at least five will be taken by the Burns.

Miss Gross, the middle-aged woman, who was the first to win the race this year, she is at present in San Francisco.

Bill West, who is receiving the entries, sent out the blanks yesterday, and announced this morning that several women had already returned them. He expects a record of about 20 minutes.

SPORT SALAD BY L.C. DAVIS.

The Pest Eternal.

O H, Johnny dear, and did you hear the forefinger at Johnny Evers for And gunning for your goat; Their patience is exhausted And at you they'll take a crack For putting on the final straw That broke the camel's back.

At getting goats and scrapping You're indeed a wondrous chap; In fact, you're never happy till You're mixed up in a scrap.

The public's sick and tired of That temperamental stuff; You've overplayed it Johnny, and They say enough's enough.

That stuff might go in Boston, Where the people are the best; But it is not in favor in New York, So, Johnny dear, just listen here And take a fool's advice.

Cut out the rough-house tactics, For it really isn't nice.

Naughty, Naughty! PRESIDENT TENER held up his hand to his forehead when he was getting into his forty-eighth scrap of the season at Pittsburgh on Tuesday. Some of these days TENER is going to lose patience with Johnny and send him to bed without his supper.

Or, if Johnny goes too far, he might even deprive him of his chewing gum for a whole week. You can go just so far with TENER and no further.

Lee Magee, not to be outdone by the Crab, got gay with a copper on Wednesday night and was haled before a Pittsburgh Magistrate, who told Leopold that he was a bully and a smart Alek and that the next time he visited Pittsburgh he could stay away as far as the people of Pittsburgh were concerned.

Owing to wet grounds, the Browns were unable to play at St. Louis yesterday. They will try to recover the lost ground by losing two today.

The Newark Feds will put on 10-cent baseball and give it a tryout. The St. Louis clubs have been putting on 10-cent baseball for a number of years, with indifferent success, owing probably to the fact that the fans don't like to pay for the 10-cent article.

Col. Hedges is making another of his famous sorties through the South in search of talent for the Browns. It is needless to say that if the Colonel succeeds in landing the players he has in mind there will be nothing to it but the pennant for the Browns in 1916.

Why Not? WHY is a scout, anyway? Our magnates could get just as good results by turning the candidates over to J. K. Kelly's Efficiency Board and let them answer some of the following questions:

How many legs has a caterpillar, and if so, why?

How many feathers are there in a peacock's tail?

What brand of smoking tobacco do you use?

Do you always take a chew of tobacco before making a home run?

How many mins are there in a new shirt when it comes from the haberdasher?

Do you believe in capital punishment for unrepentant?

Suppose you came home at 3 o'clock in the morning and found friend wife at the foot of the stairs and friend mother-in-law at the top, would you bunt, hit it out or alibi?

NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE IS EASY FOR A HUSTLING TEAM

—JOHN J. MCGRAW.

Any Club That Will Show Ambition and Fight can Land the 1915 Flag.

Those who thought that John McGraw had forever forsaken the coaching box, were somewhat surprised yesterday when Little Napoleon appeared on the lines during both ends of the double-header which the Giants bagged from the Cardinals.

And inasmuch as the New York club took three out of four from the Cards, there's absolutely no foundation for the belief that McGraw has "quit" the game.

Withal McGraw is thoroughly displeased with the existing conditions in baseball. The presence of the Federal League, which has disgraced the disciplinary system of the game, and the enforcement of a 21-player limit in the National circuit, has completely upset McGraw's scheme of play.

"This is an easy year to win the National League pennant," said the Giant manager before departing last night for Cincinnati. "The presence of the Federal League, which has disgraced the disciplinary system of the game, and the enforcement of a 21-player limit in the National circuit, has completely upset McGraw's scheme of play."

"Any team that will get out there and fight, any team that shows the proper amount of ambition and enthusiasm, should win, walking."

Fat Contracts, Fat Players. "But the old spirit is gone. The players don't enthrone over victories, like they used to. This hardly is perceptible to the casual rooter, but can be seen the change. There's a different spirit on my club since things were upset by the Federal League."

"Conditions are altogether different and while all the men apparently are hustling, they are not keyed up to the pitch they attained in the old days. There's too much distraction, too much money and too much independence. This has hurt the game of baseball."

McGraw always has been a stickler for speed and discipline. In years past, he has been a stickler for speed and discipline. In years past, he has been a stickler for speed and discipline.

On his last pennant machine he had made the fastest runner in the National League. In 1913 he had the best running club in either league.

WGA COLUMN

PRESIDENT JOHN H. TENER may be head of the National League, but Johnny Evers of the Boston Braves appears to be making a noise like its dictator. Johnny tramples on everything from the umpire's toes to the rules of common decency—and is punished with a three-days' rest for his weak ankle.

If Evers were some poor wight hanging on to his job by his eye teeth, he probably would have been tinned and expressed back to the broom-corn districts. But being a spark-plug and the coach's box, were somewhat surprised yesterday when Little Napoleon appeared on the lines during both ends of the double-header which the Giants bagged from the Cardinals.

Veteran Horse Owner Dies.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 5.—Col. R. Henry Owens, who a number of years ago was one of the most famous breeders in the country, died here today. Col. Owens was 71 years old. Racing history shows that a number of his horses won some of the biggest racing prizes that were contested for 15 and 20 years ago.

Jones Will Work Willett in First Terrapin Battle

Plank-Bender Duel Is Planned for Saturday Feature in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 5.—Fluider Jones and his Terrapins arrived here this morning ready to inaugurate the four-game series with the Terrapins this afternoon. Four of the best players in the game are here. The last time the Terrapins played here, the Terrapins won their winning streak, which numbered 12 straight.

Edgie Plank and Chief Bender do not pitch today. It is the intention of Managers Jones and Knab to save their stars until Saturday and call it "Plank-Bender day."

The last time these two met here a record-breaking attendance was on hand. Bender, Willett, who last Sunday, showed signs of coming back to life with the hot bat, hit here, and then downed out two hits in six innings, may get a whirl at the Terrapins today. Billy may be called upon to oppose him.

Brooklyn lost its last game to Boston, 4-3, on July 27. Then the Pirates bagged three out of four, while the Reds won the eighth and drove him. He repeated this feat on the 29th, when he drove out Pittsburgh and Jeff Pfeffer's shutout of the Reds are the only triumphs gained since July 27.

But Brooklyn isn't the only club that is slipping. The Cards are bucking up with a pretense that booter H. H. H. is a division aspirant. The Cards now are only two and one-half games ahead of the Reds, and it is pertinent to remember that Cincinnati has won five out of its last six

Willie Jarr Earns a Whole Nickel
by Deciding Not to Be a Gentleman.

"DON'T you think Willie is old enough to start taking piano lessons?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "Little Aubrey Prink doesn't look much older and he plays the piano beautifully. I think I'll start Willie. What do you think?"

"Oh, I think he isn't old enough," said Mr. Jarr. "Some of the great masters began as children. Mrs. Prink told me," said Mrs. Jarr. "And her Aubrey practices four hours a day. Maybe we should have started Willie at the piano long ago; but, then, it's better late than never."

"No," said Mr. Jarr, firmly. "Better never than any time. If Willie is to take up any of the fine arts, let us apprentice him to a plumber; but there'll be no piano playing in this family. They're no good!"

"Why," cried Mrs. Jarr, "look at little Aubrey! Everybody just goes wild when they hear him play the piano."

"And I'd just go wild if my son played the piano!" retorted Mr. Jarr. "Willie would look real cute with hair like a Cossackian Princess in a side show, wouldn't he? That's all right for foreigners; it's natural for them; but to see a big, strong American man spanking a piano always gets on my nerves. I think we will omit piano playing and knitting titles from the educational course we are mapping out for our son. If I can afford it, he shall go to college when he's old enough, and be taught football, baseball, college yelling and all the athletic classics. But I'm not for piano playing. It's too brutal."

"Well, I think it would be real sweet if he played the piano," insisted Mrs. Jarr.

"So it would," replied Mr. Jarr. "Very sweet. Has Willie shown any inclination for a musical career?"

"Well, he's always putting the cat in the piano, and he can play chop-sticks with little Emma," said Mrs. Jarr.

"Bully for him!" cried Mr. Jarr. "There is yet hope!"

"You should be ashamed to talk that way!" said Mrs. Jarr. "Little Aubrey Prink created a furore at a children's party at his mother's house the other day. He played a piece of Schumann's and recited a French poem."

"I thought it was our Willie who created the furore at that party," said Mr. Jarr.

"He behaved terribly, if that's what you mean," said Mrs. Jarr.

"He broke one of Mrs. Prink's gold chairs poured lemonade into the piano and hit Aubrey in the face and made him cry, and Mrs. Prink had to telephone me to come for him, and I know he'll never be invited there again. I never was so humiliated in my life!"

"Did he do that?" asked Mr. Jarr grinning. "And yet you want him to play the piano? Don't you think he should recite French poetry, too?"

"Well, it would be nice. He's much smarter than Aubrey Prink. It wouldn't take him long to learn," said Mrs. Jarr. "Call him in here," said Mr. Jarr.

"Master Willie Jarr came after a slight delay."

"Do you want to play the piano, my son?" asked Mr. Jarr.

son?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Now!" said Willie contemptuously. "I want to play the bass drum in a band."

"Don't you want to be a little gentleman?" asked Mrs. Jarr.

The boy hung down his head and rubbed the toe of his shoe on the carpet.

"Answer your mother," said Mr. Jarr. "What do you want to be?"

"I want to be a burglar or a taxicab driver!" blurted out the boy.

"There, now!" cried Mr. Jarr, clapping his hands. "You see, his ambitions are those of the normal American boy of his age. You're all right Willie. Here's a nickel for you!"

But Mrs. Jarr declared it was no wonder that she could do nothing with the children.

The Passin' of Shorty Blake and Wes Moore

THE roulette ball was spinnin'—Shorty Blake was in the game an' the way he shoved his chips around was anything but tame. Half a dozen men stood near him, but they went an easy pace an' their playin' 'side o' his was like a deuce spot 'side an ace. Shorty kept a water busy. When he'd had, well, may be, six, he began to drop his winnings. (Booze an' roulette seldom mix.) He was playin', cussin', drinkin' when there stepped in through the door the one man that Shorty hated. 'Twas his rival Wesley Moore.

Him an' Wesley had some trouble bout a girl named Mary Gray. They was both in love with Mary—that's the way it was. It was understood between 'em that they'd pull an' shoot on sight. Things was lookin' pretty ticklish in the roulette room that night. Shorty kept on playin' reckless. He got even even ag'in, but the game had fallen to let him see his enemy come in. Shorty sudden-like got foolish—pushed his whole pile on the red. "Rich er busted —now er never! Let'er flicker," Shorty said.

It was "busted." Shorty staggered; then he turned an' seen Wes Moore. "Blast your hide—you was my hoodoo," Shorty's voice had reached a roar. "I'm half drunk myself, you're sober. Drink six whiskies an' we'll fight." Moore just smiled at him an' answered: "Sure! I got you! That's all right."

Six big slugs of booze he ordered an' he downed 'em right away. "Now," he says, "you onery cheap skate, we'll decide who gets Miss Gray." Quick as lightning guns was flashin'; two reports rang out on the coast; that's all they fired, an' the damage had been done.

As the boys picked up the rivals so's to make room for the game, a loud laugh came from the banker—Charley Baker was his name. "Two fools less," he said, while grinmin'. "Fightin' over Miss Gray! What if I'd a-told these blockheads Mary married me today?"

Sure enough, the girl they wanted had been married to that guy. "Didn't want to tell," said Baker. "Seen a good, stiff scrap was nigh." Then the ball he started spinnin' and the game was on once more. In the card room Wes was lyin'—so was Shorty—on the floor.
